Car thefts stack up

Auto thefts have been increasing dramatically in many western Wayne County cities, including some of our own. Some law enforcement officials are pegging more cars and more commuters as the reason.

NUMBER OF CARS STOLEN

Local cities tackle auto thefts

By SHERRY WOODARD
ANP Staff Writer

When metro Detroiters think about car theft in Wayne County, they tend to think about Detroit, but the problem has gotten so severe in the western, suburban portion of the county that a special task force is being organized.

The elected head of the task force, Canton Police Chief John Santomauro, is seeking grant funds from the Automobile Theft Prevention Authority. If the money is approved, the special anti-auto theft team would hit the streets of Canton Township, Romulus, Van Buren and Sumpter Townships as well as Wayne.

Also included in the task force coverage area would be Northville, Northville Township, Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

Romulus Police Chief Charles Wilmoth said he is glad to see an effort under way to form a task force because the car theft problem in his city is more severe than in any other western Wayne County community.

Last year 639 cars were stolen in Romulus. A significant portion of those thefts occurred at Metro Airport.

A few miles down the I-94 highway in Van Buren Township, 187 cars were stolen. Police Chief Joseph Davies said the thefts occurred in a variety of places such as drive-ways and parking lots—just about anywhere cars were left unattended.

"Any time we have that sizeable an increase in auto thefts, we have a problem," Santomauro said. Popular automobiles on car thieves' lists include Trans Ams, Corvettes, Camaros and Cadillacs, he said, although just about any car could be on a thief's list because of auto parts.

It was at a recent meeting of the Western Wayne County

Chiefs of Police Association that a program was developed to form a task force.

Almost a year ago, money for such special crime fighting teams was made available through the establishment of the Automobile Theft Prevention Authority, created by a public act.

The authority gets money from an annual assessment of automobile insurance companies at a rate of $1 per car per year, said Santomauro.

He is asking for a grant of $250,000 for the western Wayne County task force.

Good neighbors

The Romulus High School drama club took their show on the road this past Saturday and came home with nine individual awards. They brought their one act play, "The Neighbors," to Ferndale High School to compete with several other Detroit area schools. According to Philip Walker, drama teacher, Romulus placed third in the district but "blew the competition away with their technical ability and props." The comedy takes place in 1904 but said Walker, "Could happen anywhere, anytime. It's about people who take their neighborhood for granted but when something happens, they pull together. They did a fantastic job."

Officials investigate major gasoline spill

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

The major gas spill which occurred Jan. 11 was much worse than officials first reported.

Initially reporting a loss of 30,000 gallons or the equivalent of one holding tank, Boron Oil official Evan Erickson told officials from the Department of Natural Resources, Romulus administration, the Environmental Protection Agency, Wayne County, Butler Aviation and Boron Oil that "the total volume lost was 54,000 gallons."

The meeting came at the request of the DNR which, according to Water Specialist Cathy Morse, "will continue to monitor the situation."

A report of the spill and a plan to avoid similar future situations will be submitted within 30 days, according to Roy Schrameck of the DNR.

According to Steve Fesko of Boron, "The spilled gas similar to kerosene, is water white and at night the size of the spill could not be determined. The gas does float and was easily skimmed off."

Computer records show the spill began about 11 a.m. on Sunday," explained Erickson. "At 1 p.m. the tanks were losing 16-17 gallons a minute. A valve did not shut off and about 4:30 p.m. started to overflow outside the underground tank at a rate of 10,000 gallons per hour until a Butler employee noticed the problem and notified officials at 9:30 p.m. Cleanup began about 2 a.m. The Coast Guard and DNR were also notified."

He added the company repaired two valves, a meter and rewired a control circuit. To date, 63,000 gallons of liquid

"There has been sufficient progress taken with the cleanup that we are satisfied at this point."

were recovered from five containment sites along the Sloss-Gauging drain which is located in Romulus and Taylor and eventually connects with the Ecorse and Detroit rivers.

The accident occurred at the Butler Aviation fuel farm on the northwest corner of Middlebelt and Wick roads. The fuel was being pumped underground from a Boron Tank farm near Telegraph and Ecorse roads, about four miles away.

Twenty men from Marine Pollution Control worked around the clock for four days to contain the spill. "Ninety five percent of the spill has been contained and cleaned," assured Fesko.

Morse expressed concern about fuel in the area of the Butler site which could be trapped in ice and snow. "Containment will remain in this area until spring. It's possible the soil could be contaminated."

Loretta Kroetsch of the United States Environmental Protection Agency noted, "A major spill is anything over 1,000 gallons."

Allie Abbas of the Airport Authority said "Some physical containment will take place in the future. All other tank farms are protected with some type of containment as a precautionary measure."

"There has been sufficient progress taken with the cleanup that we are satisfied at this point," concluded Dave Paul, city of Romulus building director.

Artrain will begin state tour in Romulus

When the whistle blows, Artrain will stop first in Romulus.

Artrain, the only art museum on a train in the nation, will kick-off its Michigan Sesquicentennial tour when it parks behind the Carl Morris Post Office and the old District 1 Schoolhouse in downtown Romulus from March 25-29.

"All eyes will be on Romulus," proudly noted Kristine Detroyer of the Romulus Council for the Arts who will be the host while the Downriver Council for the Arts will sponsor the visit.

Ken Munson, director for the Downriver Arts added, "This is great. We wanted Artrain to stop somewhere Downriver during its 25-city tour of Michigan. With Romulus the first stop, we can promote and enhance the arts and history of Romulus and the surrounding communities."

Local artists will also be asked to participate in the exhibits. "You have no idea about the range of talent that exists in your city," Munson said.

Artrain was founded in 1971 by the Michigan Council for the Arts, and has toured more than 250 cities in 28 states. Last year, 83,000 people walked through the four box cars and caboose of Artrain.

The theme of the exhibition this year is, "The Cranbrook Vision: Past and Present." The collection will feature, "The art and ideals of the this unique Michigan institution."

Dan O'Leary, Artrain director said, "Indeed, it is an honor for the downriver area with its rich history and culture to be the official kick-off location of the Michigan Sesquicentennial tour of Artrain."

The exterior of the train will depict several Michigan themes, according to Detroyer.

"This is a major undertaking. Thanks to the cooperation of the Downriver Arts, the Romulus Arts, Downriver Metroplex Alliance and the city of Romulus administration, we did it. The mayor is extremely proud," she added.

Action initiated against illegal drug traffic

Members of the mayor's task force on drugs will take their fight into the streets of Romulus this month when a teen help card and drug hotline are implemented.

Since Mayor Beverly McAnally announced a city-wide war on drugs last November, the appointed task force members have met twice.

During the first meeting, the task force comprising leaders from the community, addressed 12 issues related to the local drug problem.

Kathryn Cieszynski, Southeast Michigan Substance Abuse Service, said she would obtain information about drug education from the state. Efforts to provide wholesome activities for idle youth, funding, parent education and publicity were among other notable issues.

During the January meeting, task force members focused on three specific areas, noted Alton Shelly, director of the Romulus Help Center.

1) A wallet-size teen help card, which lists local resources to help youth. Sally Repeck, of United Community Services, developed a draft of a card she shared with other members. The mayor indicated the city would fund some of the reproduction costs. Shelly said the card should be ready for distribution by the end of next month.

2) Fifteen high school students selected from a group of 50 were appointed to a Youth Advisory Council. "They expressed a willingness to serve on the council," noted Shelly. The mayor will visit the high school in early February where the first meeting will be conducted. "Only from input by these young people can the community obtain the understanding needed to combat the problem," said McAnally. Follow-up meetings will be conducted in city hall.

3) An existing drug study, researched by the University of Michigan, will be obtained by Lloyd Coleman of the American Progressive Association. The study identifies the problem of drug abuse in high schools, and would possibly eliminate the need to conduct a similar expensive study in Romulus High School, Shelly noted.

A Hotline number directly into the mayor's office will also be established. "Drug and alcohol abuse will never be eliminated, but with education and an involved community, we'll make real progress," Alton said.

McAnally sets ground rules with McNamara

Mayor Beverly McAnally wasted no time relating the concerns of the citizens of Romulus when she spoke with the newly-elected Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara last week.

Twenty days after election to his four-year term, McNamara met with the mayor privately in Downtown Detroit.

So as the new county executive deals with county reorganization, a mounting deficit and severe budget cuts, according to his state of the county address, he now comes face to face with the mayor of the city of Romulus.

"We don't want to be overlooked by the county," said McAnally of her meeting with McNamara.

"We articulated some concerns, specifically, Metropolitan Airport. In the future, the city of Romulus wants to be involved in all airport planning. McNamara controls the county and oversees airport policy. The city of Romulus should be more than just a commuter stop. Let's hope some dollars are dropped off in the meantime."

"Although airport users pay for the expansion, I'm not sure their needs totally satisfy the needs of the city or the region," concluded McAnally.

Nurse cares for city kids

When Ruth Fairchild arrives at any Romulus school, students automatically know who it is, in or out of uniform. It's the "bug lady."

"Everybody knows me as the bug lady," said Fairchild, the one and only official school nurse for all 6,000 students in the school district including St. Aloysius Elementary School.

She began work with the district in 1974. Romulus had three nurses then, two of whom soon retired and were never replaced.

So since then, Fairchild has battled one contagious disease after another, some of epidemic proportions. Her latest skirmish came during the measles outbreak at the junior high school this past fall.

"It was one of the worst things I ever had to deal with. Sixty kids were infected with measles. It was mind boggling," recalled Fairchild who as one of 12 children never caught measles once, she said.

Head lice are an annual problem and because she's checked "the heads of as many as 450 kids in a day," she easily earned the distinguished and affectionate title, "bug lady."

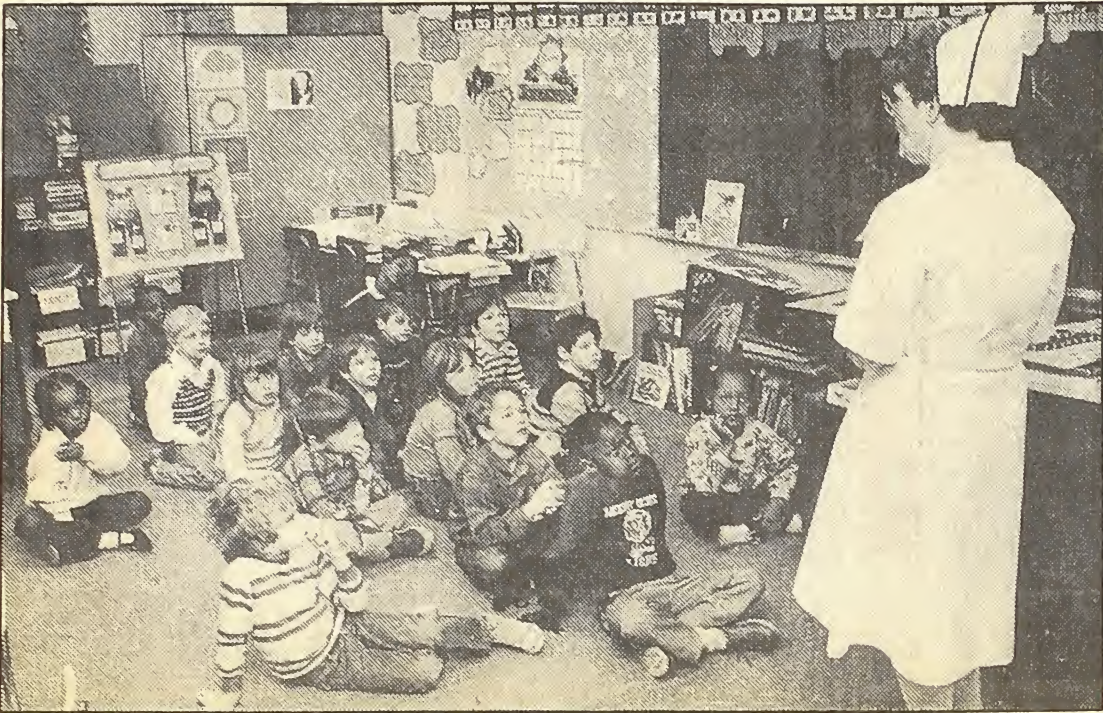

Trained in public health nursing in her home state of Kentucky, Fairchild worked the hills of Appalachia for 11 years before her employment with Romulus.

She was widowed in 1972, and left with three small boys, two are twins, and a little girl. This year the youngest will graduate from high school, the oldest will marry and her middle son will make her a grandmother.

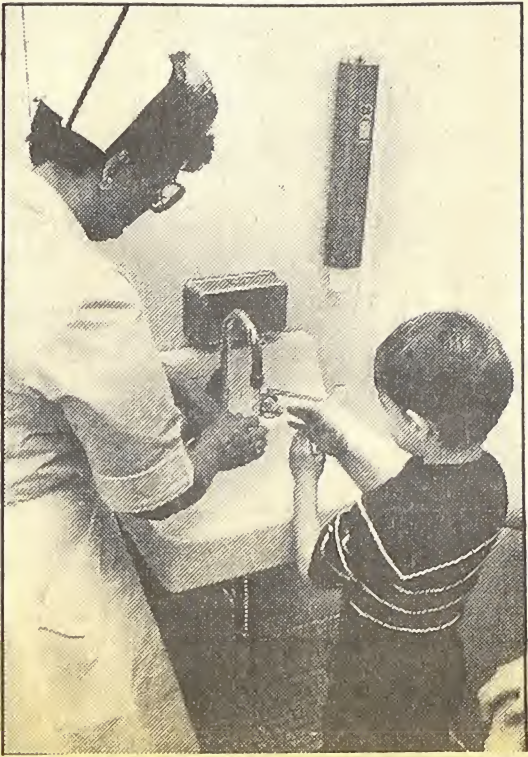

Back at the school front, she regularly teaches children about hygiene during her weekly school visits. And a generation of Romulus children learned about the birds and bees from the "Human Growth and Development" course taught to 4th, 5th and 6th graders.

"I'm for prevention and gung-ho about immunization. That's the major thrust of school nursing," she said.

"I really love kids. I'd have a house full of them if I could."

City reviews disaster potential

Fires, explosions and other emergency disasters could potentially occur within the city of Romulus at any time, according to the Emergency Preparedness Director Margaret Leduc.

The public and all employees have the right to know where hazardous materials can be found and what they are, according to Public Act 67 and 80.

As part of an effort by the state of Michigan, businesses have been asked to submit the following information:

- A list of the hazardous chemicals on site and a date sheet for each chemical on the list.
- A description of the quantity and location of any hazardous chemical specified by the Fire Chief.

"Chemical suppliers and manufacturers have been involved with the law since May of 1986. But these laws go further and include all businesses whether large or small, private or public. This may surprise some small stores and businesses," said Leduc.

Hazardous materials can be as familiar as cleaners and paints, Leduc noted. "We are concerned about the large quantities. The Right-to-Know Act requires employers to inform employees about the hazardous chemicals present on their premises. The information would be provided to local fire departments who must know how to respond and fight an emergency situation," she said.

Hazardous materials and their transportation are a major concern of the city. "With two major railroads, two major expressways and the airport, more and more chemicals pass through the city every day. A major gas pipeline runs the entire length of Middlebelt coming from the state of Pennsylvania. Hospitals and universities often ship contagious bacteria into the airport. Romulus has all the potential for any accident, emergency or disaster, not to mention tornadoes," she stressed.

Leduc noted the situation in the city is already heavily monitored. "But there's still the potential. There's a lot to think about," she said.

The city has witnessed several disasters over the years, Leduc recalled. About 10 years ago, a pipeline exploded near Inkster Road and a huge fire destroyed three homes. A few years ago, a small plane struck a fuel tank and Canadian assistance was requested after the fire raged out of control for three days. In another accident, an airplane carrying JOHN COLINA, PRESIDENT of Central Distributors of Beer in Romulus, was appointed by the Downriver Metroplex Alliance to serve as a director on the board of the newly formed Downriver Metroplex Foundation. The foundation, a tax-exempt, non-profit organization, was specifically created to raise private funds in support of the DMA's image building and quality of life activities as well as finance three major economic development programs for which no public funds exist. The DMA was formed by the state to stimulate economic growth in Downriver region. Colina will serve as secretary.

The DOWNRIVER BUSINESS EXPOSITION will be sponsored by the Downriver Metroplex Alliance on March 27-28 in the Taylor Community Center, 12111 Pardee. Tickets are $15 at the door. 26,000 people attended the Exposition of 150 businesses last year. More are expected to visit this year. Judy Kurtzhals, of CORE Enterprises and John Roundtree both of Romulus joined a volunteer task force which will promote advertising for the annual exposition program book. For information call 281-0700.

The MOTHER-SON VALENTINE Dance will be hosted from 6:30-8:30 p.m. on Tuesday Feb. 10, in Romulus Junior High School by the Recreation Department. "If mom can't attend, maybe grandma, an aunt or big sister can attend. And if you have more than one son, the more the merrier," said Recreation Director Debbie Dick. Call the recreation building at 942-6852 for information. Deadline to sign up is Feb. 6.

Every month each teacher at ROMULUS JUNIOR HIGH nominates one student for special recognition. In December, the students were: Patreece Amos, Cari Arble, Tonya Atherton, Heather Baron, Lisa Bonner, Michael Booker, Thomas Crawford, Darinda Davis, Shawn Davis, Timothy Dufore, Chad Filek, Hattie Forbes, Billy Garland, Jerry Garland, Raymond Good, Jabez Gray, Chris Hawkins, Nathan Henning, Wendy Hopper, Arlette Jones, Steve Kilgore, Lisa Kochanski, Susan Molenda, William Morris, Michelle Mullins, Julius Nathaniel, April Patterson, Liza Pooley, Kelly Prause, Michelle Ragland, Kiantee Rupert, Roman Stanowski, Theresa Stanton, Marci Tomchick and Alanna Young. Congratulations!

Five ICE SKATING RINKS were flooded last week by the Romulus Department of Public Works Department at locations throughout the city, thanks to the Recreation Department. Ice rinks are located at the following schools, Merriman, Halecreek, Gordonier and Barth as well as Kennedy Park. "The ice is frozen and ready for skaters," said Debbie Dick, recreation director. Skating hours are until 6 p.m. at the schools, and 8 p.m. for Kennedy Park.

An HYPNOSIS SEMINAR to help lose weight and stop smoking will be offered by Romulus Community Education at Romulus High School, 9560 S. Wayne Road. The stop smoking program starts at 6 p.m. with the weight control seminar following at 8:15 p.m. The $30 fee will be refunded if not "convinced the seminar will work for you." For information call 941-0610. Self Psych Clinical Hypnotist David Rowe will conduct the seminars.

ROMULUS RESIDENT RANDOLPH Gear, who was chosen Detroit teacher of 1986, was recently elected to the Democratic 15th Congressional District caucus at the UAW Local 735 in Canton. The State Democratic Convention will be conducted Feb. 14 at Cobo Hall.

One of TWO ARMED MEN were apprehended and arrested following an attempted robbery of the IGA store on Eureka at Inkster roads. According to Romulus police, two black males approached the manager and security guard after they had closed the store and were about to enter their vehicles. "The victims were escorted and handcuffed to a semi-truck in the parking lot. Both suspects were wearing ski masks. One carried a sawed off shotgun and the other a hand gun," police stated.

An alert citizen is credited with notifying police after the resident "saw what was happening. They called Romulus police who arrived before the robbery was consummated," Chief Charles Wilmoth said.

Rodney Adams, 21, of Taylor, was arrested and charged with two counts of assault with intent to rob and one count of a felony firearm. The maximum penalty on the first count is life in prison. The second count brings a minimum of two years in prison. Adams was arraigned in 34th District Court and waits in Wayne County Jail pending a preliminary examination on Feb. 4. Bond was set at $100,000.

WHEN TAYLOR POLICE officers stopped a vehicle on the evening of Jan. 28, they apparently solved the mystery of three breaking and enterings in the area of Middlebelt and Eureka roads which occurred earlier that night. The officers discovered what appeared to be stolen property and notified Romulus Police.

Items in the vehicle were identified as those apparently stolen from the three Romulus residences, according to Romulus police who obtained warrants from the Wayne County Prosecutors office for the search.

John McNac, 19, of Inkster was arrested and charged with three counts of breaking and entering. Bond was set at $75,000, and a preliminary exam scheduled for Feb. 11 in 34th District Court.

A second adult will be arraigned today. The other person involved is a juvenile and court action is pending, police reported.

While PATROLLING THE HOTEL parking lots early Sunday morning, Romulus police arrested Dennis Robert Yankey, 17, of Romulus. Yankey and an accomplice apparently attempted to steal an automobile in the north parking lot of the Hilton Hotel. "They were observed checking cars to see if they were open. They entered a 1986 Ford. Police observed the activity. As they approached the vehicle both suspects fled on foot. Further investigation revealed the ignition was damaged in the attempt to steal the car," Romulus Lt. Ken Kraus stated.

Police, with the assistance of a tracking dog, located the individuals nearby and apprehended them, police said.

The ROMULUS POLICE DEPARTMENT will host the annual Awards and Citation Program at 8 p.m. Feb. 9 in city hall. "The program is conducted to recognize outstanding achievement and meritorious service among our law enforcement officers who have helped the department become a professional agency," noted Police Chief Charles Wilmoth.

Romulus JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL BAND performed at the District Solo and Ensemble Festival last Saturday at Livonia Franklin High School and captured a total of 97 medals. Eighty-four students participated. They set a new school record when they earned first division ratings in 21 events. The Junior High School Concert and Symphonic Bands will perform next on Saturday, March 21 at the District Band Festival in Ida, Michigan.

A life in our hands

Her pain was so real, so genuine, there was nothing to do but listen.

She phoned to tell us that in any story we printed about her husband's recent sentencing on charges of sexually molesting children, we had to include the information that he was innocent.

She explained that she had been married to this man for 23 years, and that she, of all people, knew and understood that he was innocent of the horrible allegations which smeared his name and reputation.

We tried to explain, as gently and politely as possible, that we could not make such a judgment. While she listened, or seemed to, when she began to speak again, she obviously had understood nothing we had told her. She spoke to both our executive editor and news editor, and neither could convince her that we could only print the facts as we could discern them, and that no opinion could be included in the report of her husband's sentencing.

She told us that we just didn't understand. She told us that we had ruined her husband's life. She said that we had damaged his reputation beyond repair and that he was professionally marked forever. "He is innocent, the judge is wrong. I know he's innocent," she sobbed.

We tried, we made every effort, to explain that only a judge in a court of law, or a jury, could decide whether her husband was guilty or innocent in our system of justice. We don't do that. We didn't bring the charges of sexual misconduct with students in her husband's classroom, and we never, ever judged him as guilty or innocent of those charges. That isn't our job.

She was not to be consoled, and in her pain, she once again reminded us of the tremendous responsibility and obligation that we undertake here each week. Our responsibility must go further than reporting the news. We owe a degree of compassion, of caring, of empathy and feeling for those we serve and for those who are the subjects of those reports.

There is a pride in our newsroom, a pride in the degree of accuracy and fairness we provide, a pride in the kind of people we are and a fierce pride in the product that we produce. But we are also very proud of the kind of human beings that we are.

There is no scandal-mongering, ambulance chasing philosophy of journalism here. There is no sensationalizing for the sake of selling newspapers and there has never been nor will there ever be an attitude that getting the story is worth any consequence, even the ruining of a life and career.

We did not ruin this man's life. We did not perpetrate the crime, nor did we judge him in any way. We did our job and reported that he had been accused and convicted of criminal sexual conduct involving his students.

It is our job to provide that information to the community, so that they might be aware of the dangers that could lurk in the most secure appearing environments for their children. We owe the school district, and the parents and children who brought these charges the public exposure of the measures taken to protect them and make the classroom safe for others.

But the sympathy and the empathy that we felt for this woman was profound. Her pain touched each of us here and reminded us, very vividly of our grave responsibility in dealing with stories of this nature and others.

We took her very seriously, as we do each of you.

The gospel according to Rudy

Every time I see him, Rudy Petzold seems to have improved.

The outgoing president of the Michigan Press Association and owner and publisher of the Ocoila County Advertiser, Rudy is still recovering, however. A few years ago Rudy suffered a stroke that left him partially paralyzed and confined to a wheelchair.

These days, despite what doctors told him, he climbs stairs, although haltingly, with only the help of a cane. He has regained almost all the use of the arm that physicians predicted might remain in permanent retirement.

It is always a treat to watch some in action who loves what they are doing with their time and energy as much as Rudy obviously does. As Rudy would introduce a speaker at the 118th Convention of the Michigan Press Association, or open or close a program or perform some other perfunctory duty, he would pause to share an anecdote with the assembled mass of editors and publishers in his inimitable, charming and clever Will Rogers style of delivery.

This last weekend, Michigan editors and publishers convened at the Amway Grand Hotel in Grand Rapids. Once again, the program included seminars and speakers on a wide range of topics from libel to the JOA between the two allegedly starving dailies in Detroit.

The membership of MPA, we were told, comprises all of the 53 daily newspapers in the state, and some 99 percent of the 239 weeklies in Michigan who are eligible for membership.

The entire weekend was interesting, but what made the meeting of this august group memorable, was the charisma of our ailing but valiant president. Rudy stood before us this weekend for the first time without the aid of crutches. Last year, he stood before us for the first time — as he had finally worked his way out of his wheelchair. As the weekend wore on, and his stamina obviously became reduced, his cane became more and more a necessity and in evidence.

I think what I enjoy most about this man is his philosophy of life which he frequently shares with others. Rudy explained his three necessities of life as the three Ps: prayer, people, and patience. "I run a little short of patience," he chortled. "You have to be careful however," Rudy went on. "I know a guy who prayed for patience, and the Lord sent his mother-on-law to live with him."

For every occasion Petzold seems to have an off-the-cuff remark that always seems appropriate, and more often than not is amusing. If the gathering doesn't seem to enjoy his humor at times as much as he does, it doesn't seem to bother Rudy.

Rudy Petzold has learned to find the humor in most situations and sometimes even in the lack of other's cheer. Aware that convention programs are often long and laborious for the listeners, Rudy quipped, "As I understand it, your job is to listen and my job is to talk. If you finish your job before I finish mine, feel free to leave."

As he introduced the Adjutant General of the State of Michigan Vernon Andrews, Rudy remarked that there was a general seated next to Andrews with one more star . . . Mrs. Andrews.

"Anything you liked this weekend was my idea, anything you didn't like was Warren Hoyt's idea," Rudy said with a grin. Hoyt, the executive director of MPA, couldn't help but laugh as heartily as the rest of the crowd at that one.

At our luncheon Friday, Rudy introduced the governor who had just finished cutting a large birthday cake using the general's sword. The cake was, of course, in honor of Michigan's 150th birthday. and we need you to get well. After all, we never got a chance to say thank you. charm. He beat death by a hair's breadth that time, and we are all praying that he can do it again.

A special message to a special man

This is a very personal and very sincere message to a man we have been privileged to call our friend and co-worker for more than 20 years.

It is for a man who could make every reporter in the newsroom angrier than just about anybody else. And it's for that same man who bailed out more fledgling journalists and saved the day for more editors at Associated Newspapers than could be listed.

There is nobody quite like him, and the news that he had suffered two massive heart attacks and was in critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital in Ypsilanti brought tears to the eyes of even those he made the angriest. We were stunned and shocked, for to us, he was as indestructable as the sun, and as necessary.

Lothar Konietzko has been the chief photographer here for as long as just about anybody can remember. He suffered a serious automobile accident several years ago and was hospitalized then, frightening everyone here with the mere thought of having to do without his skill, experience and cranky charm. He beat death by a hair's breadth that time, and we are all praying that he can do it again.

Lothar is a man nearly everyone in the community knows. The president of the Wayne-Westland Federal Credit Union, his involvement there has been his avocation for a number of years. And anyone who has been the subject of his camera lens and demands for perfection knows just what dealing with this charming, contrary, bright, energetic genuine artist can be like.

Lothar demands perfection, he poses his photographic subjects with directions in his commanding German accent, and produces photos that simply cannot be topped. He is a master at his craft, and beneath that sometimes tough exterior is truly a heart as gentle and good as exists anywhere.

He has won more awards for his craft than we could possibly list and he is, to put it simply, the best there is.

The thought of losing him as a co-worker is devastating, but the thought of losing him as a friend is unthinkable.

Dearest Lothar, please, please get well and return to us. We're each, in our own way, praying for you, and if love and friendship count, we know you'll make it.

You have our most sincere best wishes for your recovery, and you are in our thoughts and our hearts. You are truly irreplaceable and we need you to get well. After all, we never got a chance to say thank you.

Love at first sight

Last week, I fell in love.

The object of my affection can only be referred to as beautiful. He has sandy-colored hair, breathtaking blue eyes and a smile that melts hearts far and wide. He has skin as pure as milk touched with honey. And he won my heart in our first embrace.

He is Adam Kosteva, 4-month-old son of State Rep. Jim Kosteva, and we met for the first time when his dad brought him in to visit me. He is one of those babies that makes the kid on the Gerber jars feel ugly.

And, as I clutched this tiny bundle of humanity to me, watching him smile and make bubbles, I recalled a conversation I'd had with his father, long before his birth. Jim and his wife Laura wanted to become parents for a long time, and Jim was voicing his frustration and anxiety in his own inimitable, witty style.

Smart aleck, and devout cynic that I am, I told Jim he was nuts, pure and simple. Why, I asked, would anyone want to bring a child into a world such as this. With the threat of nuclear destruction, disease, warfare and the corruption that marks our society, to bring a baby into the existence we suffer today would be unconscionable. Why would anyone want a baby, I demanded.

Jim looked at me, very

Health and welfare are statewide topics

During the 1986-87 legislative session, Michigan lawmakers took action in several areas that affect the health and well-being of Michigan residents. New laws and programs designed to ensure proper medical treatment and offer protection from harmful substances include:

- Improving the state licensing of physicians by expanding the power of the Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulation. The Department and licensing boards can now impose more fines and require that restitution be made to patients. In addition, the grounds for revoking or suspending a physicians' license have been expanded to include immoral or criminal sexual conduct.
- Action to protect the health of women and infants. Michigan physicians and surgeons must now inform breast cancer patients of alternative methods of treatment besides mastectomy. And now, all infants must be tested at birth for a wider range of treatable disease that, when undetected, can lead to mental retardation or death.
- A legislatively-supported source of much-needed transplant organs. Hospital representatives must ask patients near death or their families to consider the donation of suitable organs or tissue.
- Public health regulation. New laws provide greater protection to workers involved in the required removal of potentially deadly asbestos from schools and other buildings. Smoking in public buildings such as auditoriums, museums and theaters has been greatly restricted. Lawmakers banned the use of sulfites, preservatives in food prepared in restaurants, as the preservatives can be deadly for some highly sensitive individuals.

- Strengthening the rights of the mentally ill and residents of long-term care in Michigan. An amendment to the Mental Health Code allows a person facing court-ordered commitment to request that the hospitalization hearing be delayed up to 90 days while he or she receives voluntary treatment. And now any employee of a nursing home or other long-term care facility who witnesses serious patient abuse must report it to the appropriate law enforcement agency.

Proper health care, protection from hazardous substances and the assurance of a patient's rights and safety are important concerns. The 1985-86 legislature took positive steps to protect the health and well-being of all Michigan residents.

seriously, and said, "Because I have hope."

I thought about that long and hard, and as I held Adam, I really understood what he meant. You see, Jim and Laura sought medical aid in creating Adam, and his twin sister, Jessica. These were babies these two intelligent, educated, caring people dreamed of, worked for and prayed would happen. And, without the help of modern man and the medical miracles we've learned to perform, Adam and Jessica might just have never existed.

If man has learned to step into the shadow of God, and has the ability to help in the creation of life, then perhaps he can also learn the justice and mercy of God. If we have the gift of creating life, then perhaps we also have the gift of kindness, of forgiveness and compassion.

Adam and Jessica were no accident, and to hold Adam, and to see the life and the potential that exists within that tiny, precious body can only remind me of the joy and the hope and the contentment I felt when I held my own firstborn 21 years ago. Perhaps, I said to myself, we don't always get wiser with age, perhaps we forget some very important lessons we learned along the way.

If man can have a hand in bringing a creature like Adam, healthy and bright and perfect into the world, maybe, just maybe, he can learn to stop attempting to destroy his own planet.

Jim was right. To watch Adam's bright eyes dance around the room, to hear his giggles and see him learning to operate his tiny, perfect little fingers can only instill hope for the future in each of us.

Even a cynic like me.

looking down at Petzold who had left the lectern and returned to his luncheon seat.

As the silence grew somewhat uncomfortable, the governor, obviously puzzled as to the reason no one had come forward to claim the lectern from him, spoke to Rudy, seated in the audience directly in front of him.

"Rudy," the governor asked, "Is there anything else you had in mind for me to do up here?"

About now, I figure, Rudy had realized that he had remained spellbound too long with the rest of the audience, and knew that he should have started making his way up the platform stairs much earlier . . . but hadn't.

Slowly, Rudy stood up and turned toward his fellow journalists who sat in silence trying not to act embarrassed for him. In our president's usual fashion, and with only the tiniest smile, he said, "God I love this job . . . even the governor asks you what to do!" And as the tension broke into laughter, Rudy made his way slowly and haltingly back to the stage.

Rudy concluded his remarks by saying, "I didn't do anything dramatic this year, but on the other hand, I didn't mess anything up, either."

Rudy, by the way, is still a bachelor. "Marriage, I figure," says Rudy, "is like taking a ham sandwich to a banquet."

Failure, according to Petzold, should be visualized in the mind in letter form. Picturing the big, dark, foreboding letters F-A-I-L-U-R-E. And then the word should be placed in a box and tied shut so that it cannot be reopened. The box should then be placed on a mental shelf and forgotten.

"We must say YES every day," Rudy stated at the Saturday night dinner, as he stood before us with his left arm barely mobile at his side.

"We need to talk to each other more," Rudy continued, "about what's in our hearts not just what's on our minds."

Rudy Petzold spoke to our hearts this year, as well as our minds. Where others would have faltered, he remained strong. Where others would have tried to prove they had strength, he confessed his weakness.

With obvious regret, Rudy relinquished the presidency of our fine old institution. But I can assure you, that his courage, determination, style and wit, will stand as a model for those of us who are more mortal. He is an example others will find difficult to match.

Rudy Petzold will always be looked up to whether he is on a stage, or in a wheelchair. May God grant you great joy and peace, and all good things, Rudy, in return for the wisdom and courage and the faith you have so clearly demonstrated in yourself, in your fellow man, and in our maker.

See you all next week.

McNamara freezes county spending

COUNTY - A freeze on all new county hiring, all new capital expenditures and all out-of-state travel has been issued by Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara.

With his second executive order within a week, McNamara has said the freeze was the first of a series of steps he will take to reduce county spending and avoid a year-end deficit. According to the county executive, the freeze will remain in effect until the budget is balanced.

McNamara said the move should save the county about $2 million this year.

Selection is based on a composite of academic factors - school records, junior class rank, SAT/ACT scores, leadership potential, extracurricular activities, athletics, physical fitness and recommendations.

Nominated by Ford were: Bradley Dropps (Air Force), Kevin Krasko (Air Force), David Sebeck (Air Force), Akshey Vij (Military), Theodore Welling III (Air Force) and Eileen Meath (Naval) of Canton; Prescott Boisvert (Naval) and Gerald Diete-Spiff, Jr. (Air Force) of Wayne; and Michael Collins (Air Force), Edward Deogracias (Air Force), Jeffery Englehart (Naval), Brian Pawlowicz (Air Force), Robert Renard (Naval) and Scott Smith (Air Force) of Westland.

Phone users dial '00'

WAYNE - Michigan Bell customers in the Wayne area must now use new dialing procedures to make local or long distance calls requiring an operator.

"Customers won't notice any difference when placing direct-dialed calls," said a Michigan Bell spokesman. "But callers dialing '0' will reach a Michigan Bell operator who will only be able to provide assistance on calls within the customer's local calling area."

Customers who need operator assistance from a long distance company must dial "00" or contact the long distance company for instructions on how to place operator-assisted calls.

Phone users with a 397 prefix will be affected by the new plan.

Health tests offered

BELLEVILLE - Free health tests are being offered to people ages 60 and older Wednesday, Feb. 11 at the September Days Senior Citizens Center, 46770 Ayres Road, Belleville.

The program is a part of the Discover Good Health screenings sponsored by the Peoples Community Hospital Authority and Beyer Memorial Hospital.

Screenings are done on an appointment basis. To register or for more information, call 467-4638.

Overcrowding addressed

COUNTY - The Wayne County Board of Commissioners have appointed Susan Heintz to the special jail over-sight committee to analyze and make recommendations concerning the prison overcrowding problem in Wayne County.

In another move to ease the prison overcrowding problem, County Executive Edward McNamara last week ordered the purchase and installation of 32 bunks for the Wayne County jail to be used to begin double-bunking prisoners in one wing of the jail.

Warning signs are asking for help

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

Contrary to the belief that teen years are "the best years of our lives," mental health professionals label those years as among the most stressful ones.

Teens are confronted with decisions regarding alcohol, drugs and sex during this period and are torn between peer pressures, their own values and parental standards. In addition, teenagers are under pressure to succeed in the classroom and, later on, in the work place.

"Because of their youth, teenagers have a short-term perspective on life. When things go wrong, they don't reason that things will turn around and get better. Instead, they tend to believe nothing will change," said Gene Hadwiger, psychotherapist from Woodcreek Counseling Center in Farmington Hills.

"Teens may feel that suicide is a way of feeling power over something — their own life. They may believe that if they die, those left behind will be sorry for their past behavior or that they will miss them," Hadwiger said. "Youngsters who feel neglected by their parents especially may take the attitude 'you'll miss me when I'm gone.'"

Hadwiger said there are signs which can alert parents and other concerned adults to a potential suicide attempt. First, he said, it is a myth that if one talks about suicide, the individual won't do it. Expressing thoughts and ideas about suicide is a warning sign, Hadwiger said.

"Communication is always important," the therapist said. "Ask questions and even if the answers are not direct, they will provide some clues and indications of the feelings that the teen has. If the youngster is expressing suicidal ideations, the parent should seek some professional help. If the teen is deeply depressed, hospitalization may be needed to protect the youngster."

According to Diane O'Connor, a therapist who specializes in grief therapy, teen suicide is a leading cause of death for those between the ages of 15 and 24, just below homicides and accidents.

The fact that a majority of suicide attempts occur between 3 and 6 p.m., prompted O'Connor to speculate that those individuals probably chose a time when they could be discovered and, consequently, prevented from completing the act. It is believed that only three percent of those who attempt suicide really want to end their lives. The act is a cry for help and attention for the majority of those who attempt suicide, she said. However, for every one person who commits suicide, some 50 to 100 people will try it.

The greatest pressures for teens seem to occur in the senior years of high school and college, according to O'Connor. During the last year of school decisions must be made on what to do next, O'Connor said. This is the time when students become anxious about making life choices and are filled with apprehension and, sometimes, depression as they face the uncertainty of the coming year.

Excessive parental pressure may be difficult for a youngster to handle, according to the therapist. There is nothing wrong with wanting the best for the youth, she said, but it should be accompanied with the attitude 'I love you, I'll help you, I'll share.' If a parent is constantly pushing the youth to excel but does not show a desire to be helpful, then the teen will think they are only loved for their "A's."

O'Connor suggested that individuals interested in the subject of teen suicide should read "Too Young To Die" by Francine Klaigsbrun, a book that the therapist describes as "the best reading for lay persons."

Counselor helps tackle teen stress

By SHERRY WOODARD
ANP Staff Writer

Robbi Woolard has seen more unhappiness and pain in her job than most people experience in a lifetime—but her job is helping to ease that pain, and she finds her career immensely rewarding.

Woolard's title, co-director of the Alternative Education Department of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools entails finding a way to effectively counsel and help students at Plymouth Salem and Canton high schools who are contemplating suicide. Not an easy task, by any standards.

"There is no typical student," she emphasized. "We get jocks and what the kids call punks."

Surprisingly enough, Woolard has even counseled her share of overachievers; straight "A" honor roll students who are well-groomed and attractive.

"They get so many pats on the back, they tell me no one realizes they're in trouble," Woolard said.

But no matter what kind of student Woolard is called on to assist, she achieves a high degree of satisfaction from helping the youngsters come to terms with their problems and as a result, help themselves.

"There's just a lot of potential for growth. It's just so fulfilling to have them come back and say, 'Thank you for putting up with that,' because in the beginning they tell you where to go and what to do when you get there."

Luckily, said Woolard, she has not lost a student to suicide. She credits good fortune, not her skills, for that.

Students who are talking about suicide must be dealt with on a serious, compassionate level, Woolard explained.

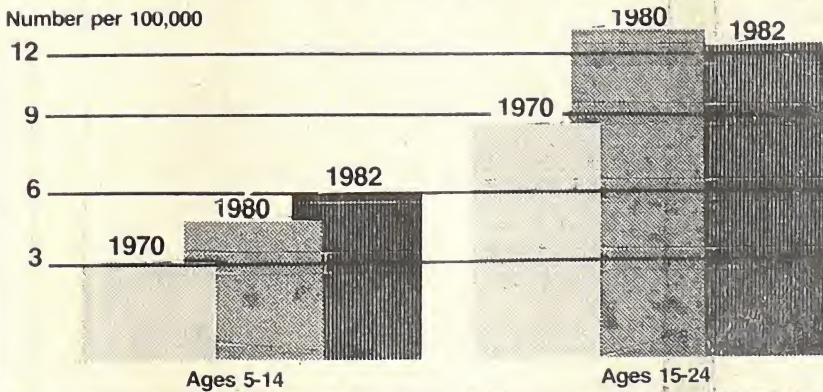

For instance, the student who has just ended a relationship with a girlfriend may well be just as despondent as the student who has just experienced the death of a parent.

To the student who lost a girlfriend or boyfriend you cannot diminish the problem by saying, "Oh don't worry about it. You'll have plenty of other relationships in your life," Woolard said.

A danger sign that a student is becoming too preoccupied with suicide, said Woolard, is when specific methods of committing the act are mentioned.

"You have to respect what they feel is real because it is to them," she said. "All their reasons may seem small to the rest of us...but if they feel the loss, then it's real."

The suicide numbers tell the story

- Suicide is the third leading cause of death among teenagers.
- It is the second leading cause of death among young males, ages 15-24.
- A 15-percent increase in the suicide in black males ages 15-24 has been noticed in the last 10 years.
- Three times as many males as females succeed in committing suicide.
- Three times as many females as males attempt suicide, although don't succeed.
- There are about 1,000 suicide attempts nationwide every 24 hours.

Help is right around the corner

By MARK NICHOLAS
ANP Staff Writer

Teenage suicide is a very serious problem in society today, not only on a national basis, but locally as well.

Local teenagers who are in need of assistance or counseling during a troubling experience, can turn to a number of helpful facilities in the area.

Pat Fitzgerald, coordinator of community programs for Wayne County, said there is a 'fast help' option available to troubled persons. "Troubled teens can call our Wayne County Crisis Line, 224-7000, seven days a week, 24-hours a day."

According to Fitzgerald, there is a definite purpose for the Crisis Line. "We are here for the process of trying to allow the person to express their feelings of what's got them down."

Fitzgerald explained that while the person is talking, the Crisis Line workers are busy, doing far more than just listening. "We try to assess the lethality of the situation, how serious is the threat of suicide. We really are an immediate, short-term solution. We try to prevent the actual suicide from happening."

Once the seriousness of the situation has been determined, Fitzgerald said the

"We really are an immediate short-term solution. We try to prevent the actual suicide from happening."

—Pat Fitzgerald

Crisis Line recommends further assistance. "The first thing we do is to try and convince the person to seek outside help, possibly from an adult."

According to Fitzgerald, there are other avenues of assistance as well. "When we are successful at preventing a suicide, we then refer the person to other organizations for help."

The other organizations Fitzgerald mentioned include North West Guidance Clinic. According to a supervisor at North West, the clinic has flexible hours. "Once it's recognized a person has suicidal tendencies, they call here. We have quite long hours, or, if we are closed, they can call the Crisis Line and they will put the person in touch with the appropriate service."

According to a North West Guidance supervisor, counselors there try to see the individual as soon as possible to assess the situation.

"If there is hospitalization necessary, we will send them. For instance, a person came in last week and was admitted the same day."

Less urgent cases are also helped at North West Guidance Clinic, according to the supervisor. "If we see someone who says they are okay, and we are sure they have the amount of support needed, we will set up counseling sessions," she said.

Another possible option for troubled teens is Suburban West, a mental facility. According to Gloria Turner, a Suburban West employee, troubled persons receive extensive help. "We have therapists on hand that do counseling as long as necessary," Turner also says Suburban West can go one step further. "If a person must see a psychiatrist, we will call one in immediately."

Troubled teens should be aware of the options available to them in this area.

1. Call the Crisis Line at 224-7000 and they will advise accordingly.
2. North West Guidance Clinic, serving western Wayne County, can be reached by calling 425-6110 or 522-8210.
3. Suburban West, offering extensive help, can be reached by calling 937-9500.

Terry Bennett

She's a lady who cares

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Terry Bennett leans back in her chair. She is calm, relaxed and comfortable. Does she really mean what she just said, "I thrive on stress."?

She must.

Wide-eyed Bennett then added, "I have a fairly high stress job and need to direct my energy somewhere, yet, maintain a balance in my family."

So she has juggled a teaching career of 13 years, her marriage for 14 years, her two daughters, aged 8 and 3, and presently serves as district chairperson of the Republican 15th District.

Bennett pursues everything with a positive attitude, something she learned while growing up in Ann Arbor, she noted.

She earned a degree in special education from Eastern Michigan University, and at the moment, is working toward a master's degree in guidance and counseling.

Looking into the future, on her epitaph she said, "I don't want people to say, 'look at her' but rather, 'Here's a lady who cared.' I just like to stay low key and get the job done."

She is a member of the Canton Historical Committee. In her spare time, she and husband, Loren, play walleyball and ride horses. She said she enjoys art, reading and occasionally some "non-thinking crafts."

ASSOCIATED NEWSPAPERS: How did your interest in politics begin?

BENNETT: My interest in politics began before Loren was elected a trustee on the Canton Township board six years ago. We walked to over 11,000 Canton households delivering campaign literature. The result was a group of Republican supporters now called the Canton Republican Club.

I agreed with the party platform and policies and wanted to work toward those goals. As the 15th District is mostly Democratic, the task is challenging. There is a core of about 200-300 volunteers. All are as dedicated as I am. We just want to maximize each candidate's potential.

focus on people

Yesterday was the district convention. Delegates were elected to attend the state convention on Feb. 20-21 in Lansing.

ANP: How difficult is your job as a special education teacher?

BENNETT: I teach handicapped young people for the Pontiac School District in a program called Vocare for terminally mentally impaired. But I hate to use labels. Each kid has their own potential. Some will be able to contribute to society and others will be dependent on people. They range in age from 15 to 22. One thing is certain. We don't use the word "retarded" anymore.

Each student has an individualized educational plan. We set goals and objectives. We teach students how to relate to their peers, self care, academics, a daily living routine and prevocational training. We offer a wide variety.

Our goal is to maximize their potential.

We constantly work and communicate with their family. Some students live in group homes and others live in their natural or a foster home. We don't want to be judgmental about parents and why they do or what they don't do for their kids.

For many of these young people, the only stability they have in their lives is what they receive in the classroom. Yet, they certainly have more social problems as related to peer groups and peer pressure.

I feel good about the program. We spend a lot of time using behavior techniques. The rewards come from watching students acquire the little skills.

ANP: Do you ever want to run for political office?

BENNETT: Sure, but not now. I have a young family and they are my top priority. I also don't think I could possibly squeeze anything more into the hours left in a day. But in the future...

Millers celebrate 50th

Ralph and Sara Miller of Homefield Street, Romulus, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last month.

The anniversary celebration was staged at the V.F.W. Hall in Romulus. About 100 guests attended the occasion including special guests from Pennsylvania and Ohio, family members and friends. The party featured a dinner, anniversary cake, music and dancing.

The two were married in Clearfield, Pa., on Dec. 26, 1936. They came to Michigan after their wedding and made a new home in Detroit and, later, Dearborn. They then moved to Romulus where they have lived on Homefield Street for 45 years.

The Millers have raised two children, Ralph Jr. and Barbara. They also have five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

They enjoy traveling, fishing, gardening and canning. Sara also enjoys crocheting.

Harlows have 'golden' day

Mary and Joseph Harlow of Narise Drive, Westland, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently.

The two were married Feb. 6, 1936, at St. Mary's Church of Wayne. They have raised four children, Joseph, Raymond, Martin and Jimmy. They also have 12 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The two celebrated their anniversary with a mass at St. Theodore's Catholic Church in Westland. The service was followed by a family dinner attended by the couple's brothers, sisters, sons and wives.

Joseph is retired from the Chrysler Corporation. The two enjoy gardening, fishing and growing mushrooms.

Romulus blasts state-ranked Detroit Country Day

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

A switch in the defensive strategy and an outpouring of points by southpaw Billy Johnson lifted the Romulus Eagles to an impressive 62-58 basketball victory over visiting Detroit Country Day Friday night before a standing room only crowd.

"We are beginning to think like a team and play like a team," said Romulus Coach Dan Henry who took his team up against a strong Toledo De-Vibless last night. "Although we took some bad shots in the second period that enabled DCC to take the lead, we came back in the second half and played the way I know these kids know how to."

"We are beginning to play and think like a team . . ."

Johnson scored eight of his game high 26 points in the first period to stake the Eagles to a 15-12 lead. However, during the next eight minutes, those "bad shots" the coach mentioned caught up to them and the end result was Country Day came back on the strength of 6-4 Todd Holliday's 14 first half points. When the two teams broke for the intermission, the Eagles were looking at a 30-25 deficit. "I decided to abandon the zone in favor of man-to-man," commented Henry, "and we put Samuels Keith on Holiday and he (Keith) did an excellent job."

So well did Keith defense the 6-4 Holliday that Holliday wound up with only one point for the rest of the evening.

Romulus came back and outscored their visitors 16-13 in the first period where they were down by as much as 15 points at one time. The Eagles clinched it with a 21-15 finale.

Romulus got 26 points from Johnson who has been the impetus of the Romulus attack while Juan Street turned in with 15 points and an excellent job on the boards at both ends of the court. Luther Shannon contributed 6-of-6 from the free (See EAGLES, page 2-C)

Look ma, one hand

Soaring to the basket while Westland John Glenn's defense stands by, Mike Hale puts this one-handed lay up in the hoop. But Hale (21) and the Rocks found the going rough against the undefeated Rockets who rallied to a 74-70 victory over their arch-Western Lakes Conference rivals and to undisputed possession of first place. Belleville in 'must' battle at Wayne

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

What a difference a week makes.

Just when Belleville and Coach Leon Birdyshaw had themselves firmly entrenched in first place, along came Trenton and Monroe to hand the Tigers one-point losses within a span of seven days.

Now, instead of playing for all of the Wolverine 'A' Conference basketball championship when they visit Wayne Memorial on Friday, the Tigers will be playing for a half. And, though a half is better than none, the Tigers could have had it all and find themselves with their backs to the wall.

And a loss to Coach Chuck Henry's defending conference champs would move Belleville out of title reach. Wayne has recovered from its only league loss (to Belleville) and has built a 9-1 record. If Wayne wins Friday night - and Henry's Zebras will have the homecourt advantage - they should be able to retain the cage title.

"We feel we need to win in order to share the league title," noted Birdyshaw after his cagers ripped Southgate Anderson, 56-42, Friday night. "At one point we had control of our destiny, we don't now. But, a victory at Wayne would give us an excellent shot at a half of title and, besides playing us, Wayne still has Monroe to contend with."

It was Monroe that pounded a nail in Belleville's coffin. The Trojans rallied from a 15-point deficit in the last period to edge the Tigers 67-66. It was the identical score that Trenton managed to beat the local quintet by.

However, Belleville mainstay Kris Grantham sustained a knee injury in the Trenton game and re-injured it against Monroe.

"We will probably have a specialist in Ann Arbor take a look at the injury," said Birdyshaw Sunday evening. Grantham is on the doubtful starting list for Friday night's encounter at Wayne. He didn't play against Anderson.

With Grantham absent, teammates Maurice Brantley and Ladion Tai' took up the scoring slack. Brantley pumped in nine field goals and was a perfect 2 for 2 at the free throw line while Tai' scored on seven field goals to lead the Tigers to their eighth league victory in 10 starts.

Brantley's 20 points stood up as the game's high.

Anderson received 15 points from Terry Fugate, who tossed in six from the field and canned 3 of 4 from the foul line.

Wayne is in 'driver's seat'

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

With the unexpected but welcomed help of Trenton and Monroe, defending Wolverine 'A' Conference basketball champ, Wayne Memorial, is once again sitting pretty in the conference.

Losers to Belleville in the first round, Wayne was looking up in the standings at Coach Leon Birdyshaw and the Tigers until last week when, within a span of seven days, Belleville lost a pair of one-pointers by identical 67-66 scores to their conference rivals.

When Belleville travels to Wayne Friday night, Wayne will be playing for all of the title while the Tigers have their backs up against the wall and must want to salvage half a crown.

"But nothing has really changed," said Wayne Coach Chuck Henry. "We need to win. A loss to Belleville Friday night would put us in jeopardy because we still have a capable Monroe team to contend with after Belleville."

Wayne will be at full strength for the rematch, however, Belleville's All-Area guard, Kris Grantham, is a "doubtful starter", according to Birdyshaw. Grantham injured his knee in the Trenton game and re-injured it against Monroe. He Birdyshaw said that he would have specialists at the University of Michigan Hospital take a look at Grantham's knee before deciding on his starting status.

Wayne made its nine out of 10 in the conference with a surprisingly easy victory over Dearborn Fordson. With Mark Claiborn scoring 18 points and snatching 19 rebounds and Mark Robinson contributing 16 points, Wayne routed the Tractors, 64-49.

"Claiborn played an exceptional game for us both on defense and offense," said Henry.

Hall of Fame

Softball's great to be enshrined in area

By MARK NICHOLAS
ANP Staff Writer

Softball players everywhere, rejoice. The city of Westland has been selected as the site for the Michigan Softball Hall of Fame, beating out Joe Louis Arena and Cobo Hall in Detroit.

According to George Gillies, director of the Department of Parks and Recreation for the city, the good news came a short time ago. "I was notified last Friday by the Amateur Softball Association (ASA) office in Oklahoma.

The hall of fame will be located in the Bailey Center, behind city hall, according to Gillies. "The hall of fame will be located in the Bailey Center, to the left, as you walk in the front doors."

According to Gillies, the hall of fame will contain more than just players. "There will be ball players and dignitaries as well." Gillies, himself included in the hall of fame, said people such as Mike Guoin, superintendent of the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, and Mike Ilitch, Red Wing owner and pizza magnate are also included.

The ASA was looking for something special, according to Gillies, when they selected Westland. "They were looking for somewhere centrally located in lower Michigan." Gillies thinks the location alone may not have been the final reason for the selection. "I think the beautification of the Bailey Center and my being in the hall of fame may have had an impact," he said.

Gillies is particularly excited by the news because of his personal involvement with the ASA. "I was an umpire for many years. I did five national championships and was selected as All-World Umpire in 1970."

The Softball Hall of Fame, according to Gillies, is a big plus for the city of Westland. "Softball is the largest amateur sport in the world. It's bigger than bowling, the NCAA, the AAU. It's larger than anything," Gillies continued, "The ASA is also the largest organization in the world, they are involved in world play. To have a hall of fame here is great."

City officials, according to Gillies, were 100 percent behind him. "The city council and the mayor were very supportive of us receiving the hall of fame."

Gillies sees a number of benefits in the selection of Westland as the site of the new attraction. "This will expose the community to people from all areas. There will be people from all over coming here that are interested in softball. Every community has a large men and womens' softball program."

And the best part may be the non-existent cost to the city. "There will be no cost to the city of Westland. The ASA will have a minimum cost of around $7,000 for the reproduction of bats, caps, plaques, display cases, etc."

Romulus is 2nd best at Lincoln Park mat tourney

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

For the want of one point Romulus was forced to settle for second place at the Lincoln Park Invitational Wrestling Tournament on Saturday.

Coach Wayne Schimming's Eagles wound up with three gold medalists and 155.5 points, one point shy of tournament title winner, Grosse Ile (156.5).

"I felt that it was a good tournament for our wrestlers," said Schimming whose team has the rest of the week off to prepare for their debut in the South Central Conference championships. "Moreover we had some key wrestlers out of the lineup due to injuries and I believe they could have made the difference."

Romulus claimed a gold medal in the heavyweight class where Steve Anderson reached the finals and won a hard-fought 1-0 overtime victory over his counterpart, Tony Ruehle, of Lincoln Park. Anderson's personal record now stands at 29-6-1.

Unbeaten Tony Venturini and Jim Schlener accounted for the other two Romulus gold medals.

Venturini, who is riding the crest of a 39-0 record, clashed with Chris Preston of Riverview in the finals and came away with a 4-2 victory.

Schlener picked up the tournament gold in the 138-pound class when he destroyed Grosse Ile's Andy Wojtowicz 15-7.

Schimming pointed out that while the juniors and seniors racked up the points, the freshmen and sophomores did a good job for us."

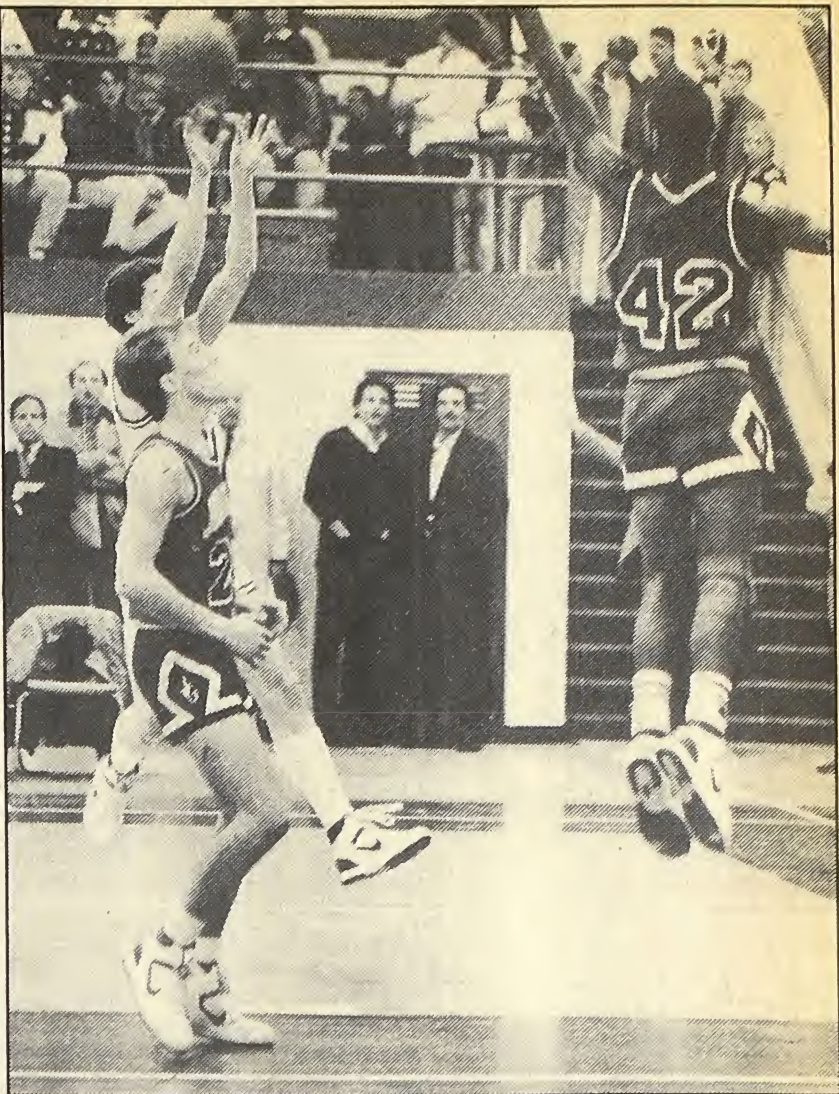

Romulus was without the services of Craig Stewart (112), Bruce Boyd (119) and Mark Dubyak (155) who were sidelined for a wide range of injuries.

The Eagles also garnered a third place medal thanks to the efforts of Charlie Crosby who turned back Dean Lanzini of Southgate Anderson in the 98-pound class. Crosby pinned his opponent in 1:41. Sixth place medals also went to Romulus' Rick Champagne (132) and Trevor Asher (198).

In dual meet competition leading up to the tournament, Romulus buried Riverview 57-13 as the Eagles recorded their 12th victory in 13 trips to the mats this season.

Romulus will be competing in its first SCC championship on Feb. 14 when teams representing Ann Arbor Huron, Ann Arbor Pioneer, Adrian and Ypsilanti get together at Huron High School.

Huron stops big man, but not Monroe

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Although they managed to stop undefeated Monroe Catholic Central's 6-9 senior center Larry Markey, New Boston Huron couldn't stop the title-bound Monroe quintet who overpowered the Chiefs 76-44 Friday night.

Markey, who has been averaging 20-plus points per game, settled for 10 against Coach Larry Swick's Chiefs. Double-teaming Markey, however, proved costly as Archie Sconochia opened up with middle range artillery and shot the eyes out of the Chiefs' nets.

Sconochia finished the evening with 18 points, the game's high.

Huron made a game of it for the first eight minutes as Doug Marmion sparked the Chiefs with his exceptional all-around play. Trailing 14-7 after the first period, Huron couldn't match Monroe's superior strength and collapsed as they left for the locker room behind 35-18.

"They (Monroe CC) dominated all facets of the game," said Swick whose club is 1-8 on the league season. "We knew we had to stop Markey and when we collapsed inside, Archie (Sconochia) killed us from the outside. Sconochia sank 14 of his 18 points in the first two periods.

Marmion was the only Huron player to score in double figures as he collected eight field goals and made his only free throw of the evening for 17 points. He also grabbed nine rebounds.

With Sconochia's 18 standing up as the game's high, Monroe also received 13 points from Doug Lipford and 10 from Markey.

Earlier in the week the Chiefs made Flat Rock sweat before falling 72-63 to their league opponents. The game was deadlocked at 30 after two periods.

"We played a much better game against them (Flat Rock)," said Swick. "Unfortunately a 24 of 71 performance from the field was our undoing."

Marmion again led the attack, scoring 14 points in the third period and finishing with 28 for the evening. Teammate Dave Watson, who turned in his best effort of the season, scored 14 points and nabbed eight rebounds.

Belleville swim coach honored by Michigan

Belleville High swim coach Sam Vicchy has received yet another honor.

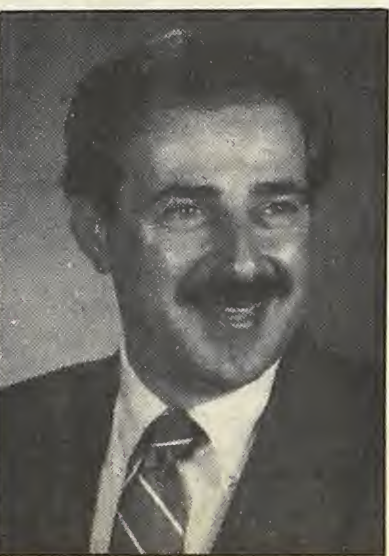

Vicchy, who guided the Tigers to their fourth consecutive Wolverine 'A' Conference girls' swim championship, has been named by the Michigan Interscholastic Swimming Coaches Association as the "Regional Coach of the Year for Girls' Swimming in the State of Michigan."

Last week, the Associated Newspapers selected Vicchy

as Coach of the Year.

In making the announcement, Michael J. Reevan, awards chairman for the MISCA group, pointed out that Vicchy is considered "one of the elite swimming coaches in Michigan today."

"Your contributions to swimming in Michigan and your outstanding coaching abilities are well noted and deserved...on behalf of MISCA congratulations" Reevan stated.

Glenn wins swim title

'Depth' paid off in title dividends for Westland John Glenn as Coach Larry His-song's Rockets captured the 1987 Wayne Memorial Invitational Swimming & Diving Championship.

The Westlanders, with three out of a possible 11 gold medals, piled up 307 points to outdistance host, Wayne, for the championship. Wayne was a far second with 208 points.

Did he or didn't he?

With his arm outstretched, airborne Glenn's Anson Stroman (42) goes high to detour this Salem shot. The Westlanders also managed to detour Salem's drive for undisputed possession of first place with a come-from-behind victory, 74-70. Glenn chalked up two more victories last week to remain undefeated on the season while the Rocks recovered from their first loss of the campaign at the expense of neighborhood rival, Canton, and Walled Lake Central. Belleville whips league mat champ

Lincoln Park, which dethroned Belleville as the Wolverine 'A' Conference wrestling champ a year ago, is in the process of losing its crown to none other than the team it snatched the crown from.

Coach Gerald Malecek's Tigers clashed Thursday night with the defending champs and the collision produced a 39-24 Belleville victory.

The victory was the sixth successive win in as many starts in the league for the Tigers who have piled up a 7-1 overall record.

Tigers pick up swim title scent

After suffering their first conference swim setback at the hands of state-ranked Monroe, Coach Bill Snider and the Belleville Tigers returned to the Wolverine 'A' Conference title hunt last week with impressive victories over always-tough Wayne Memorial and Wyandotte.

"I felt we swam well against Wayne," said Snider whose Tigers dunked the visitors, 54-29. "We got some excellent results from most of the line-up."

The victory over Wayne and a lopsided triumph over Wyandotte on Friday boosted Belleville's conference record to 4-1 on the season.

Against Wayne, the coach's son, Eric, managed to come away with two events. Eric turned in the winning time of 23.47 for the 50-yard freestyle. He also carded a 51.6 in winning the 100-yard freestyle.

Belleville also chalked up six other events, including the 200-yard medley relay where Snider turned loose Dave Traskos, Mike Ackron, Martin, Duda and Snider who brought home the winning time of 1:48.08.

In the 200-yard freestyle, Wally Rochowiak gave the Tigers a victory with his 1:53.8 performance, while Belleville divers placed 1-2 on the boards thanks to the efforts of Raul Estrada who amassed 243.35 points and Gordon Clearwood who picked up 240.35 for his performance.

"We're pleased with the progress of our divers," Snider noted. "Whenever you get two kids in the over 200-point bracket, that's pretty good."

Traskos came through in the 100-yard backstroke as he stroked a 1:01.25 and the Tigers stashed away the 100-yard backstroke thanks to the efforts of Ackron who was clocked in the winning time of 1:07.26.

Wayne managed to win three events, including the final relay when John McBain teamed with Jeff Hall, Jeron Bradley and Jim Davis for a 3:42.57 finish.

Bradley and Davis were also individual event winners. Bradley's 58.48 was good enough to win the 100-yard butterfly, while David churned out a 5:19.0 in winning the 500-yard freestyle event.

Waitress forms long-awaited professional group

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

Clubs, organizations and professional groups exist for almost every activity and occupation. However, up until the present there has been no group to represent one of the largest segments of the work force—restaurant service employees.

Now in its beginning stages of organization, Nancy Kahn of Belleville is enlisting members in the Professional Organization of Service Employees, Inc., a non-profit group dedicated to the enhancement of service professionals.

Kahn has thought about forming the group for more than two years. She calls her plan to form POSE (pronounced posy as in the bouquet) as an "idea whose time has come."

"Every other group has its organizations from bowlers and cyclists to doctors and journalists," Kahn said, "but there hasn't been anywhere that service workers could meet together with other people who understand their concerns."

Kahn, who is president of the new group, can understand the problems, challenges and concerns of service employees because she has "worked on both sides of the fence" herself. She began

"Every other group has its organizations from bowlers and cyclists to doctors and journalists, but there hasn't been anywhere that service workers could meet together with other people who understand their concerns."

working as a server (she prefers this term to that of waitress) and then formed her own business, Professional Servers, which provides workers for banquets and catered events. From her own experiences as a server and an employer, Kahn saw the need for a group to enhance service professionals.

Her immediate goal is to enlist 1,000 members and based on those numbers seek group insurance and member discounts. The organization also will lobby on issues which affect its membership. For example, Kahn said, the group will seek a change in the requirement that taxes on estimated tips be withheld from the pay of service workers.

Kahn plans to schedule seminars to upgrade the skills of servers and to enhance the professionalism of the occupation.

Her first stop when she seeks members is to talk to the manager or owner of the restaurant. Kahn assures the management that POSE is not a bargaining unit, but "it is what its name implies, a professional organization of service employees." So far, she said, she has received enthusiastic response from both management and workers. The most common comment, she said, is "this is long overdue."

In addition to Kahn, marketing and public relations duties are being handled by Gayna Graessley, Leticia Lounsbury and Ellen McDevitt. The women are seeking management people to serve on an advisory board as well as POSE members. According to Kahn, a happy hour gathering will be scheduled in February to help launch the new organization.

Applications and information are available by writing Kahn at P.O. Box 15273, Ann Arbor, Mich. 48104.

Duzan (above) has used the more than one year of work on the models as a sort of memorial to the space heroes. "It's kind of relaxing for me," the Wayne resident said of construction the scaled-down versions of aircraft. ANP photos by Lothar E. Konietzko/chief photographer

Modeling pieces of the past

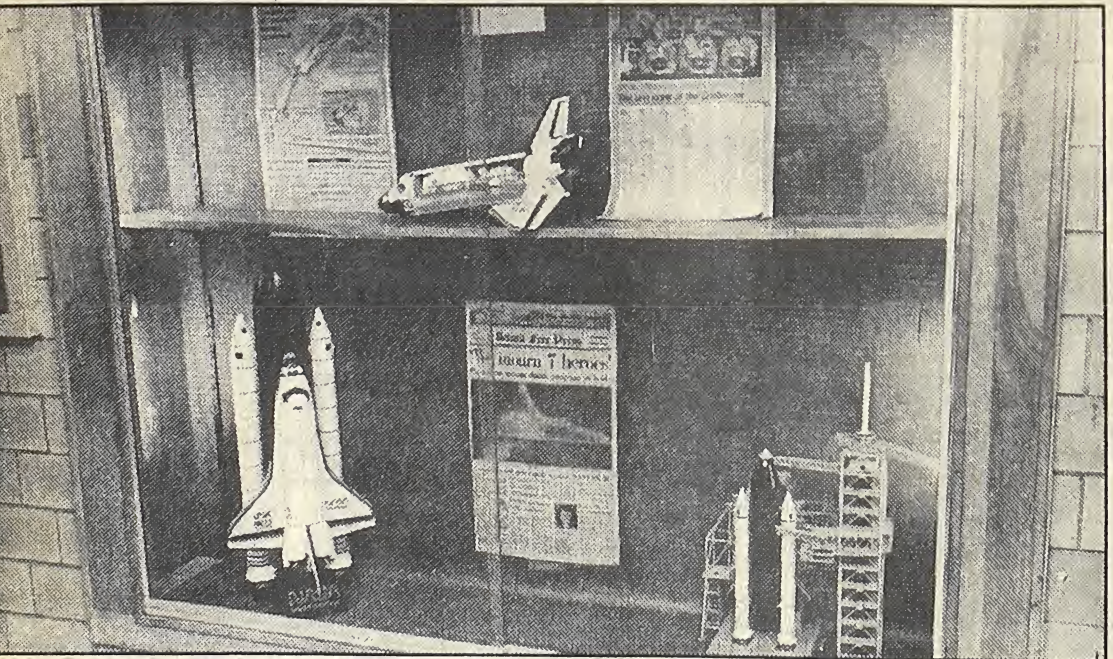

When the Space Shuttle Challenger blew up in mid-air last January, Clyde Duzan of Wayne watched on with most of the nation. However, for Duzan, the experience prompted a desire to pay tribute to the lost astronauts in the form of scaled-down models.

Duzan started building his three Challenger models about one month after the crash. With more than $150 and one year of labor into the project, Duzan now lays claim to the works of art being talked about these days at Monroe School, where the works are on display.

"After the real one blew up, it really got to me. I felt it would be a tribute to them to build the models," said Duzan. "I spent a lot of all-nighters on some of the models. I am working on another one right now."

Although the intricate detail and small pieces would add up to a lot of hard work for many people Duzan calls it relaxation, relaxation that doubles as a memorial to seven American heroes.

"It really relaxes me a lot," Duzan said. "I love to build airplanes and the shuttles, but I am scared to death to fly. It really feels good to build this kind of a tribute to (the astronauts)."

'No bed of roses'

Florist keeps growing after 25 years

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Homer Morris will confess that owning his own business hasn't always been a bed of roses. Maybe just a bed of carnations.

Morris is the owner of Coy Kendall Flowers Inc. of Belleville and has been in the "flowering business" for more than 40 years. What he started as a small retail flower shop in 1961 has blossomed into a large-scale retail and wholesale operation known many miles around.

"I built this store in 1961. Before that we used to have the flower shop in the greenhouse, but we got so busy we had to separate the two," Morris explained of his start.

Few people who make the long trek to the flower shop on Bemis and Martinsville roads in Belleville will quickly understand the long family history behind the shop. Even fewer will see that it was the flower shop that opened up a budding relationship for Morris and his wife.

In need of a part-time job, Morris began working for the Coy Kendall family at age 13. His first position wasn't one of glory, he said, but he quickly grew in stature and knowledge within the company and eventually took a job as a greenhouse grower.

Morris and wife, Betty Jean, graduated from Belleville High School together in 1948, and the two continued to work in Betty Jean's family business thereafter.

"I kind of married into this business. The Kendall family wanted someone to help out one day, and I've been there ever since," said Morris. "I really have never thought of doing anything else. When you're doing something that keeps you from looking at the clock, that's what you should be doing."

Morris' job did, indeed, keep him from looking at the clock, even though the hands of that clock went around some 50 or more times each week while he worked. But even with such a workload, Morris' love for the plant business became rooted even deeper in his heart.

In 1961, Morris joined his mother-in-law and brother-in-law in constructing the building that now houses the retail end of Coy Kendall Flowers. Later, he bought out his brother-in-law's share of the new company and concentrated his efforts on expanding the operation.

Homer Morris

business profile

His goals of expansion could, perhaps, be considered fulfilled today by examining the number of customers ordering flowers from the local florist and the number of local flower shops which depend on Morris to supply them green, potted plants. The greenhouse operation, located behind the flower shop, has blossomed into three acres of evergreen plants and foliages.

Last month, Morris received an award from the FTD flower delivering company for his more than 25 years of service to the flower industry.

Morris' wife, son and daughter are all involved in the business, controlling the wholesale end of the business and allowing Morris to continue his love of flower arranging and design.

With Valentine's Day right around the corner, Morris is gearing up to "peddle" about 700 roses and even more floral arrangements to all around the metro area. But customers ordering those holiday flowers from Morris won't see a the usual price hike along with them.

"I don't believe in socking it to my customers. We don't make any money off of holiday flowers, we just break even. It costs me more to buy flowers around the holidays," explained Morris. "I believe in personal, friendly service. That's what will keep the people coming back all year round."

Household budget balancing is a simple notebook away

"Have you fallen into the debt trap?" asks Christine Venema of the Wayne County Extension and Education Center in Wayne.

"If so, you're not alone. Many families suffer from out-of-control credit card charges and loans."

Venema explained that getting out of debt is one of the toughest problems for Americans and may take two or three years to accomplish. Venema offers the following tips:

- Go cold turkey. Cut up your credit cards or put them away in your safe deposit box. This may be the only way you can pay off your old debts without adding new ones.

- Channel any "found money" directly to creditors. Any money you get in addition to your regular income—such as a tax refund, a pay raise, overtime pay or a gift—should go directly to the lenders.

- Cut other expenses ruthlessly and use the excess to pay off old debts or avoid new charges. Redirect cash from the non-essential to the essentials that you would otherwise charge. Deciding just exactly where to cut is an individual or family matter, but some common targets include excessive entertainment (but don't cut it all out), long-distance phone calls, eating out or cable television.

- To figure out how much you can afford to charge is easy. Total up your monthly payments for creditors—include all but your rent or mortgage. If that total payment figure is more than 20 percent of business at home

your monthly take-home pay, don't charge any more. In fact, for some households—such as those with low incomes, many family members or a relatively new mortgage, 20 percent may be too high.

In addition to those tips, Venema suggested that a means of keeping track of all charges much like a checking account.

"Charge account shock occurs when consumers forget about some of the credit card purchases they've made during the month. One way to avoid charge card shock is to devise a simple ledger system, much like your checkbook," said Venema.

The home economist suggests buying a small notebook about the size of charge cards. Each time a purchase is made, write it down in the notebook and add the cost to the total balance due. Likewise, each time you make a payment, record and subtract it from the balance due.

The ledger can also serve as a check against the monthly statement, Venema added.

"You have 60 days to notify a creditor of billing errors. Follow the procedures outlined on your monthly billing statement to contact the creditor," suggested Venema.

The Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA) and local lending institutions have two programs to help low- and moderate-income Michigan people buy or build a home.

1) The MSHDA Single Family Home Loan Program currently offers 20- or 30-year fixed-rate mortgage loans at 8.5%, which require low minimum down payments.

2) The Michigan Mortgage Credit Certificate Program (MCCs) provides a federal income tax credit (up to 20% of the interest paid on the loan) that gives you more income to qualify for a mortgage and to make monthly payments. Lenders use their own interest rates, and the MCC effectively lowers your monthly house payment.

Both programs have income and purchase price limits which vary for new and existing homes.

Only a limited number of homebuyers can be assisted by the programs. You've got nothing to gain by waiting, and a lot to gain by acting now.

Call the toll-free hotline 1-800-327-9158 for pamphlets and lists of participating lenders.

Or you may call (517) 373-6840 (Single Family Loans) or (517) 335-2039 (Michigan Mortgage) for more information.

Enjoy Mexican treats for a perfect fiesta

By CHIEF LARRY JANES
ANP Special Writer

Nachos and margaritas are edible anti-freeze for the body and the spirit. Let's start with nachos. I'm not talking about those "so called" plates of stale cornchips and melted processed cheese food that Tiger Stadium and a few 24-hour convenience stores are trying to pass off. Nachos are bite-sized portions of "fire and flavor."

At their simplest, nachos are corn tortillas covered with fresh melted cheese and a generous topping of jalapeno peppers. As they become more complex, nachos can become botanas and aperitivos and are piled into a veritable tower of peppers, meat, cheeses, sausages, tomatoes, and more peppers.

Margaritas are the adult answer to lemonade. Tequila, which is cactus juice in the most potent form, is mixed with lime juice and an orange-flavored liqueur and served in a salt-rimmed glass. True aficionados order them "straight up," but it is kosher to sip "on the rocks." Nothing can be more refreshing on a hot summer day than to lay your lips into a frozen margarita pulverized to an icy slush.

Having to do investigative work for this column, I even tried the premixed powdered and frozen cocktails available at most liquor stores. BLEAAAH! Ladened with sugar and artificial flavors, a cheap bottle of tequila and a jigger of cointreau or triple sec (orange-flavored liquors that work wonders in cake batters) with a splash of fresh lime juice is the only way to go.

I have found out that for some odd reason, my nachos always taste better after a few margaritas get me rolling. Can't imagine why.

If you're looking for recipes that spell it all out for you in step-by-step fashion, forget it. If you can place some cheese and chili on a cracker and warm it in the oven, you can whip up a great batch of nachos and margaritas.

Although nachos usually require a small tortilla chip as a base, full-sized tortillas and even broken taco shells make excellent beds for the cheese and peppers. You can serve nachos as a fondue, dipping the tortilla chips into melted cheese that has been heavily flavored with chopped jalapenos. Margaritas are equally as flexible. The degree of potency, sweetness or tartness are solely up to the individual.

True margarita swishers will declare that using imported tequila, fresh lime juice and cointreau are the only way to prepare a good margarita. Supposedly, using triple sec makes a sweeter drink. Listen, after two drinks, few will be able to tell the difference.

Here's a few hints to help you prepare the best nachos and margaritas. If you fail with these little tidbits, there's a 24-hour convenience store somewhere in the city that can fill the void. Oh, and remember:

- Tiger stadium opens in 103 days.
- Prepackaged tortilla chips are okay, but you haven't lived until you've made your own. Buy a package of flour tortillas and cut them into triangles. Fry in an inch of hot oil for one minute and drain on paper towels.
- For a lighter, crispier chip, try using egg roll wrappers. Proceed as mentioned above.
- A taste-tested proven margarita starts with one and one half ounces of tequila, three-quarter ounce cointreau and one ounce of fresh-squeezed lime juice.
- Refried beans not only taste good on a tortilla, but they also act as sort of a "cement" when making nachos. Just a teaspoon spread on a tortilla chip will work wonders.
- Salsa is to nachos what ketchup is to french fries. Either buy a bottle or make your own. Put a spoonful on top of a nacho or use it as a dip.

NACHOS GRANDE

- 1 soft corn tortilla
- oil
- refried beans
- pork sausage
- 1 bunch green onions, diced
- Monterey Jack cheese
- Colby cheese
- guacamole
- sour cream
- jalapeno peppers

Deep fry corn tortillas in oil until golden brown. Drain and cover with a thin layer of refried beans. Sprinkle cooked pork sausage over the top and add green onions. Grate a little Jack and Colby cheese on top. Place in a preheated hot oven for 4 minutes or until cheese melts. Place on a serving platter with dollops of guacamole and sour cream and garnish with jalapeno peppers.

MARGARITA PIE

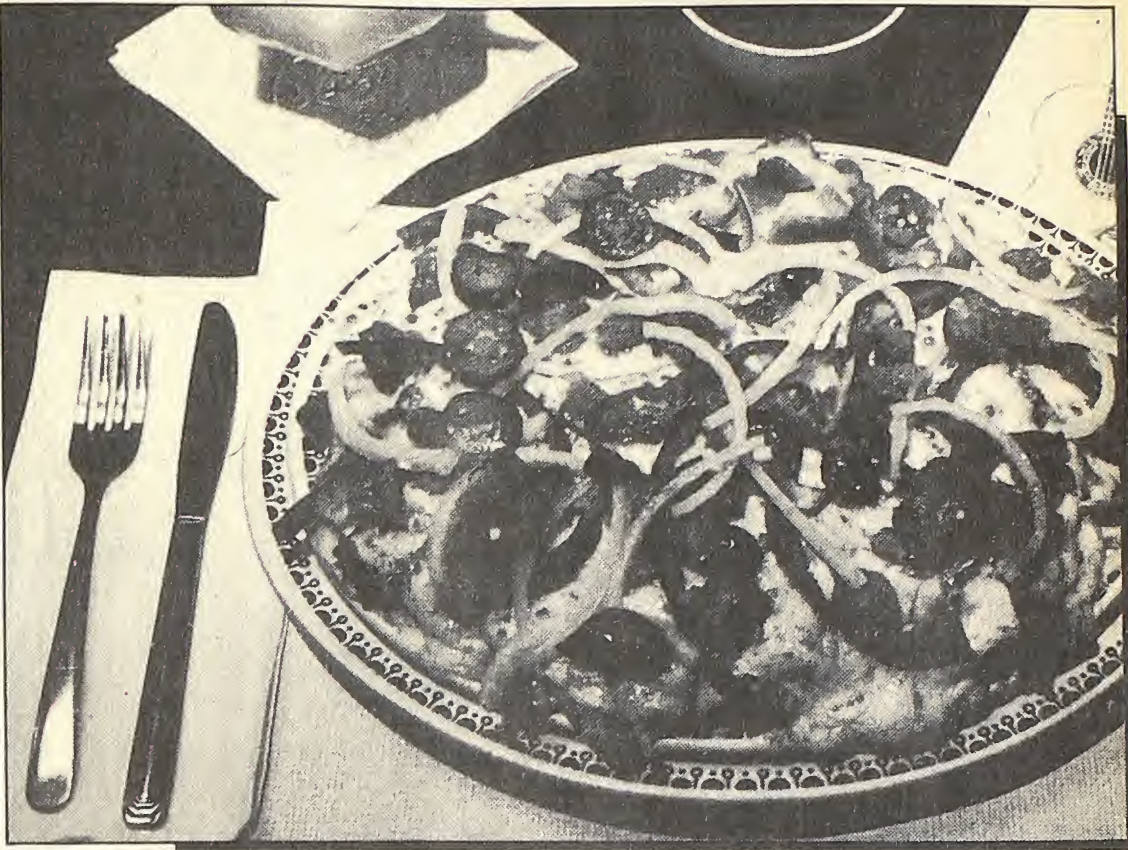

- crust:
- ¾ cup pretzel crumbs
 - ⅓ cup butter
 - 3 tablespoons sugar
- filling:
- 1 envelope plain gelatin
 - ½ cup lime juice
 - 4 eggs, separated
 - 1 cup sugar
 - ¼ teaspoon salt
 - 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
 - ⅓ cup tequila
 - 3 tablespoons Cointreau or triple sec

Combine all crust ingredients. Press into a 9-inch pie plate. Chill. For filling, sprinkle gelatin over lime juice to soften. Beat egg yolks on top of a double boiler, blend in ½ cup sugar, salt and lime rind. Add gelatin, cook over boiling water stirring constantly until slightly thick. Place in a bowl. Blend in tequila and cointreau. Chill. Beat egg whites until foamy, gradually add remaining sugar, continuing to beat until peaks form. Fold into cooked mixture. Pour into crust and chill until set, about 3 hours. Great frozen too!

JALAPENO CHEESE ROLL

- 1 pound Velveeta cheese
- 1 envelope dry onion soup mix
- 4 jalapeno peppers, seeded and chopped
- ½ cup chopped pecans
- some juice from the canned jalapenos

Allow the Velveeta to stand at room temperature for 8 hours. Roll between 2 sheets of waxed paper until very thin. Set aside. In a bowl, combine the dry soup mix with the chopped peppers and pecans. Add just enough juice from the peppers to make the mixture sticky. Spread the pepper mixture evenly over the cheese. From the long side, gently roll the cheese to make a pinwheel. Seal ends of the roll and roll tightly in plastic wrap. Refrigerate until firm, about 4 hours. Slice crosswise and serve with crackers.

Romulus resident has 'peanutty' treat

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Louise Buczkowski is a long-time Romulus resident who loves to cook, according to her daughter, Maryann. She moved into her custom-built brick home on Beverly Street in 1945. "I love it," she said. So when Louise isn't nurturing her family, pursuing hobbies or visiting with friends, she's cooking. Here are some of her favorite and delicious recipes.

CHERRY COBBLER

- Cherry Pie Filling
Yellow cake mix
Melted butter
Pour pie filling on bottom.
Sprinkle dry yellow cake mix over it.
Pour melted butter on top.
Bake 20 minutes at 350 degrees.
Top with Cool Whip.
Serve.

FROZEN PEANUT BUTTER PIE

- 4 ounces cream cheese
 - 1 cup sugar
 - 1/3 cup peanut butter
 - 1/2 cup milk
 - one 8 ounce package whipping cream
 - 9 inch graham cracker crust
- Beat cheese until soft and fluffy.
Beat in sugar and peanut butter.
Slowly add milk, blend well.
Fold in whipping cream.
Pour into crust.
Freeze until firm, wrap in cellophane wrap after frozen.
To serve, cut into medium small pieces.
Let stand 5-8 minutes.
Return remaining pie into freezer.
(Pie stays creamy smooth for a week when kept frozen.)

HEALTH/FITNESS

Safe and sporty

Shape up to fitness
with athletic style

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

Sports and exercise are the keys to physical fitness, but it takes the proper type of equipment and accessories to provide maximum efficiency plus protection against injury when individuals are engaged in physical activities.

Scott Jones, manager of Harborside Sports Adventure, takes pride in the fact that he and his staff are knowledgeable about sports and exercise equipment and can aid their customers in proper fit and selection.

For example, Jones said, when selecting running shoes, the expert runner can choose a lightweight pair, but a new runner will need a heavy-duty shoe with a lot of support for the first three to five months. Sometimes people ask for running shoes of a certain color, rather than seeking the best fit and support for their needs, Jones said. Then, it's up to the staff to provide information for that person to make a better choice.

We want people to enjoy their exercise and have fun doing it. We want them to have the exercising or sports endeavors safe as well as fun."

"We want people to enjoy their exercise and have fun doing it," Jones said. "And, we also want them to have the equipment that will make their exercising or sports endeavors safe as well as fun."

The store, which is located in the Bellville Square Shopping Center, features a full selection of equipment for cross-country and downhill skiing. Boots and other equipment are available for the beginner to the racer, Jones said.

Equipment for water sports - water skiing, sailing and rowing - are available as well as equipment for golfing and softball. Runners and bicyclists also can suit their needs at the Sports Adventure.

For those who are interested in losing weight, Jones has indoor rowing machines and "quality exercycles" which will provide years of good use and service.

Jones recommended exercising two or three times a week for beginners with a build-up to three to four times a week. He suggested that people set a goal to work up to and work toward that mark.

The Harborside Sports Adventure is open between 10 a.m. and 9 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays and from noon until 5 p.m. on Sundays.

Not too much

Use common sense with exercise, diet

It began innocently enough. She was a teenager, concerned about her figure. But for Cindy, the attempt to control her weight went too far.

Now, more than 10 years after she first began her stringent weight-loss efforts, the young woman is struggling with a bizarre disease that has eroded her physical and emotional health and nearly claimed her life.

Cindy is bulimic.

Her life is governed by two powerful drives working at cross purposes. On one hand, she is possessed by an almost insatiable desire for food. On the other, she has a phobia of gaining weight.

She learned to eat until her stomach would hold no more, then she would induce vomiting to cancel the impact of the calories consumed.

The story of Cindy is far from an isolated occurrence.

Both bulimia and its sister disorder, anorexia nervosa, have been recognized in medical literature for centuries. But in recent years, both have increased markedly.

Both disorders afflict women almost exclusively. An estimated one in every 150 girls between the ages of 16 and 20 is anorexic. Signs of anorexia nervosa include an intense fear of becoming obese, a disturbance at your own body image, a weight loss of at least 25 percent of original body weight and refusal to maintain a normal body weight, according to Dr. Sheldon Z. Kramer, a psychologist and assistant professor at United States International University.

At least 20 percent of college coeds are estimated to use bulimic techniques to maintain their weight. In fact, groups of young women at one California university held "binge-purge parties" on Saturday nights, according to Kramer.

"Five or six young women would get together and go to a convenience store where they spent $80 to $100 on food. They would buy ice cream, snack foods and soda pop, go back home, 'pigout' for an hour, then vomit it all back up. They thought it was a recreational way to spend an evening," Kramer said.

The death rate for anorexics is estimated at from 6 percent to 20 percent. Figures for bulimia deaths are easily estimated since its symptoms are not evident on autopsy.

Although the disorders sometimes are tied to psychiatric disorders such as schizophrenia or manic-depressive illness, more commonly the victims are high achievers, bright attractive daughters of upwardly mobile families. They often are docile, easy-to-manage girls who do well in school and tend to be perfectionists.

Kramer said victims tend to have underlying feelings of inferiority and low self-esteem. There have been cases where bulimic behavior has been set off in individuals by rejection or by a disappointment, he said.

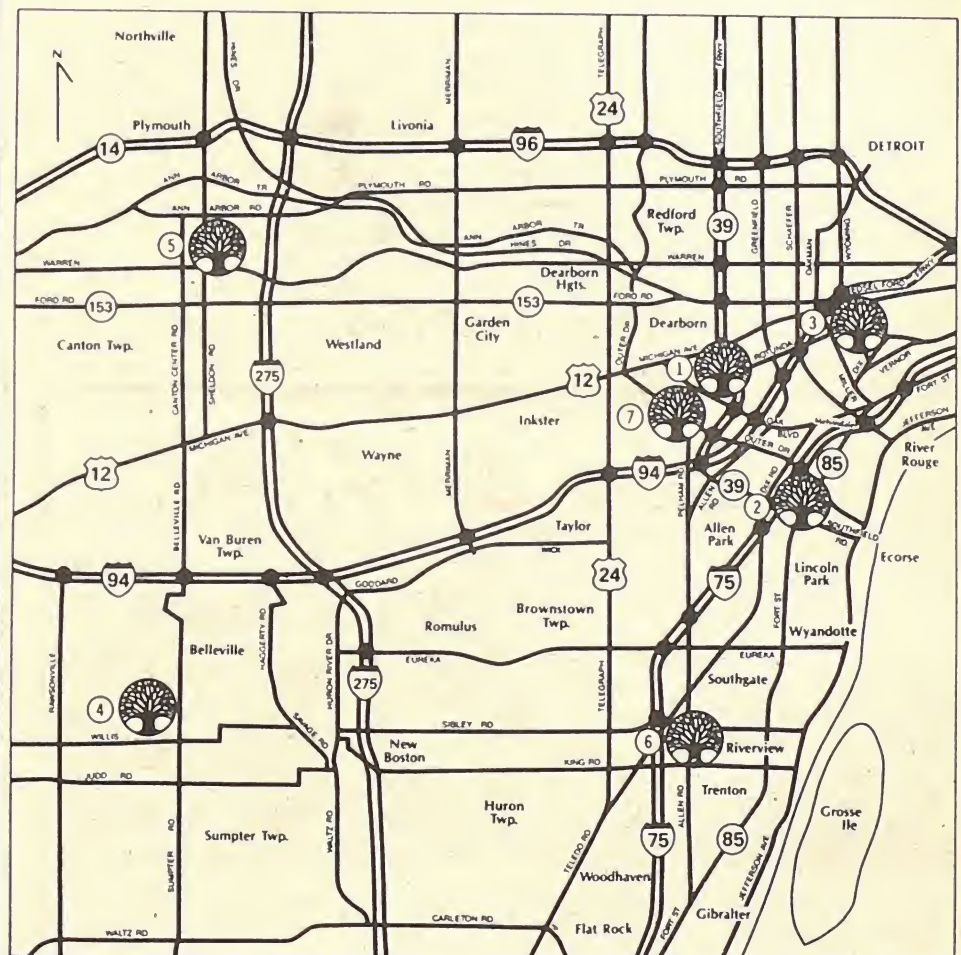

As western Wayne County's most comprehensive health care system, Oakwood Health Services Corporation stands apart from other health care organizations.

For over 30 years, we have had our finger on the pulse of the community, growing side-by-side in order to continue to provide high quality, affordable health care services to those who depend on us.

We launched our commitment in 1953 with the opening of Oakwood Hospital, then a 213-bed, non-profit community hospital. Today, Oakwood Hospital, the cornerstone of the Oakwood Health Services Corporation, is a 615-bed acute care teaching facility with over 450 physicians representing a wide range of medical specialties and sub-specialties.

In recent years, our expansion has extended beyond the physical boundaries of the hospital. In response to the need for quality health care in convenient Downriver and western Wayne locations, Oakwood now has modern facilities in Belleville, Canton, Dearborn, Lincoln Park, Trenton, and Westland.

With our expansion, however, we have never lost sight of our mission. We have grown to become the most comprehensive health care system in western Wayne County because of our successful response to your needs... convenient care close to home.

Tumbling down

Start kid fitness off right with body-building gymnastics

By MARK NICHOLAS
ANP Staff Writer

Never too young, might well be the motto of the Palastra Gymnastics Center where age has little to do with gymnastic success.

According to Ruth Webb, director of Palastra Gymnastics, kids can start out in gymnastics at a very young age, with the proper guidance. "Our youngest student is one and a half years old."

There are specific traits to look for in younger students, however, and Webb understands just what to look for. "Basically, there are certain things as the kids develop, so early development is very important. Kinesthetic awareness, where you are and what you are doing, is very important," she said.

The young students do some of the same things as the older kids, with some modifications, according to Webb. "The younger students do tumbling, bars, beams, and trampoline. There are of course a tremendous number of mats used, for protection. We also do not put any of the bars up high at all."

Practice makes perfect, according to Webb. "All of the skills are learned on the floor, before they are done on any beam or bar. We keep a six to one ratio of students to teachers for optimum individuality." In addition to all the safety precautions, there is one more important factor Webb stressed. "All of the activities are done under the watchful eyes of the parents who attend, for the younger kids," she said. There are, according to Webb, other things that are addressed in her classes. "We do vaulting concepts, jumping and bouncing concepts, it's basically a movement education program. "We're working all the time, all the children are 'spot assisted' (helped with their moves). There is a very positive attitude, everything is set so the children can handle it," the instructor explained.

How To Stay "In The Game"

Keeping fit is important for everyone. It's good for your health and emotional well-being. Whether you play rigorous sports or exercise at home, occasional sprains, strains and pains do occur.

If this should happen to you, the UMA Multi-Specialty Medical Center is here to help. Our Immediate Care department is open extended hours to care for non-critical conditions, including minor sports injuries, without an appointment.

Yes, it's good to exercise and stay in shape. It's also good to know that UMA is there if you should need medical attention to get you back "in the game" swiftly and safely.

There are few restrictions and many benefits, according to Webb, for young children in gymnastics. "There are virtually no prerequisites at a preschool level. Every child can benefit at this level." And, it isn't only coordination that is improved. Some surprising problems may be helped by physical exercises necessary to perform several of the routines children learn at the Palastra Center. "Hand-eye coordination and dyslexia can be helped through gymnastics classes," Webb said.

Palastra currently has about 60 to 70 preschool children enrolled in a program, and more than 200 in the club as a whole, according to Webb. There are two children's classes, on the pre-school level, "We have a Mom's and Me class for children from one and a half to 3 years old. This class involves the parents, either the mother or father, participating with the child. The other class is called Super Tot, for 3 to 5 year-olds. This is when the parents attend, but do not participate with their child."

The future of gymnastics at an early age is bright, according to Webb. Palastra Center is located at 38424 Webb Drive in Westland.

CHIROPRACTIC LIFE CENTER

1214 S. WAYNE RD., WESTLAND

YOUR CHOICE; METHOD OF HEALING

Those of us who are in ill health, will seek the services of one who is trained in the healing arts. We wish to place ourselves under the care of one who will restore our health.
If we have never been under chiropractic care in the past, we will then wish to know what chiropractic can do for us? Will it improve my condition? How will chiropractic restore my health?

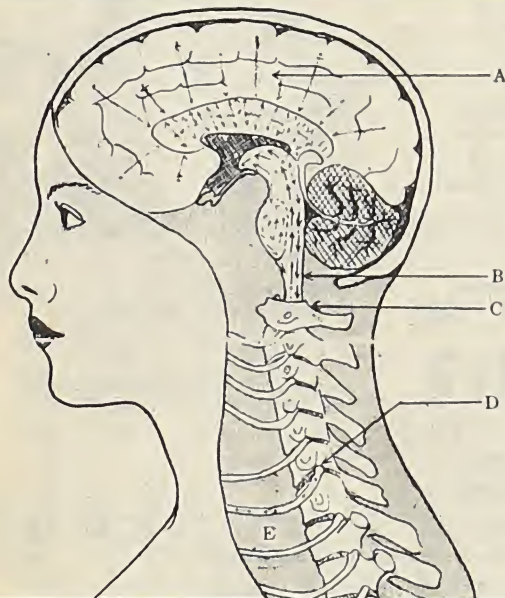

As a chiropractic patient, you will receive no drugs or undergo no surgery for your sickness.
How then will you get well without the use of drugs or surgery?
To properly understand this, we must realize that there is A CAUSE OF ILL HEALTH. This cause must be found and corrected to restore good health.
What is this CAUSE and how can chiropractic correct it?
After your case history has been taken, a SPINAL EXAMINATION will follow to locate the cause of your sickness.

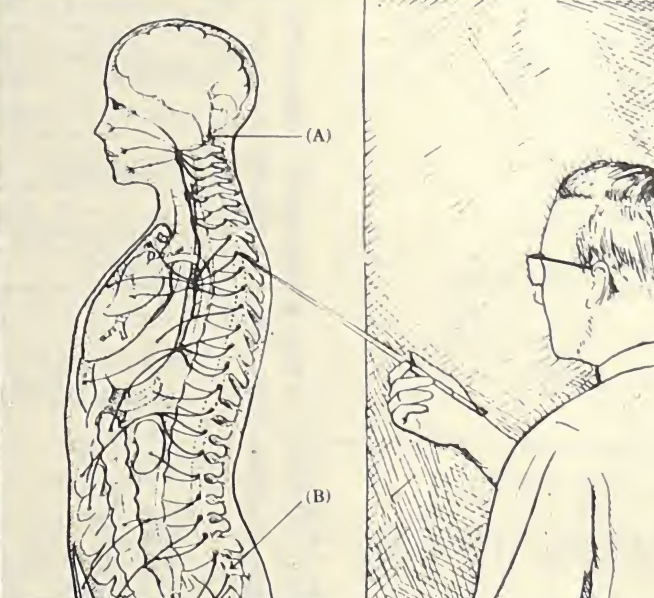

SPINAL EXAMINATION

By use of X-Ray machine, nerve tracing instruments or by feeling (palpation) the chiropractor examines the spine. He will then determine if there are any vertebrae (bony segments of the spine) out of place thus causing pressure upon the nerves.
But why examine the spine when our trouble is elsewhere? WHAT HAVE THESE OUT OF PLACE VERTEBRAE TO DO WITH OUR ILLNESS? WHAT IS NERVE PRESSURE?

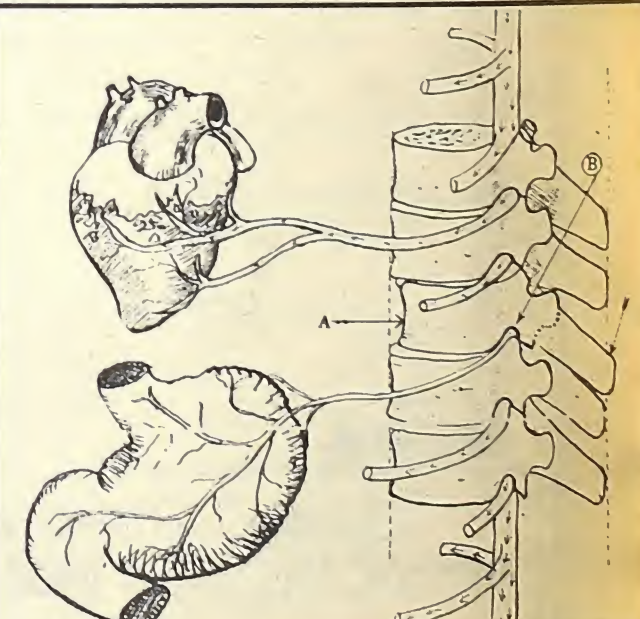

All our bodily functions such as digestion, heart beat or breathing receive mental impulses or nerve energy from the brain, (A). These mental impulses flow down spinal cord, (B). Spinal cord enters spine, (C). Small openings between vertebrae (D), permit nerves, (E), to emerge and to carry these vital mental impulses or nerve energy to all parts of our bodies. [See next page.] THESE VERTEBRAE ARE MOVABLE. THUS WE CAN SEE SHOULD A VERTEBRA SLIP OUT OF PLACE, THAT WOULD NARROW THE OPENING THUS PINCHING THE NERVE.

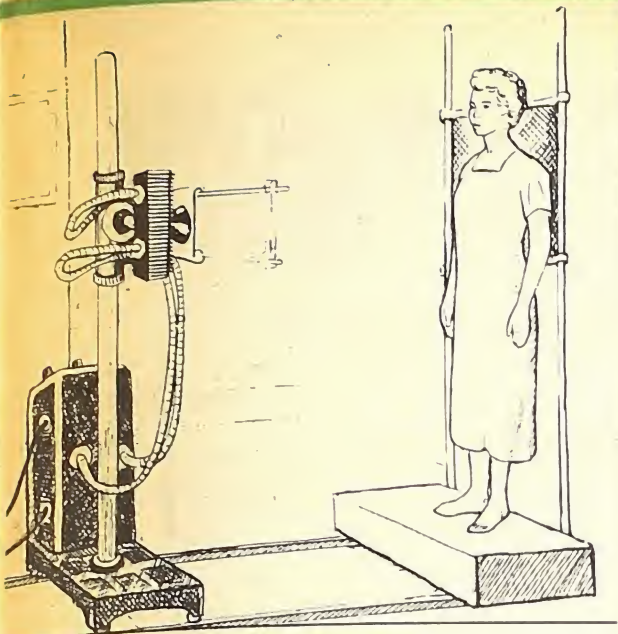

NERVE ENERGY; FROM BRAIN TO BODY

Our spine consists of 24 movable bony segments called vertebrae. The spinal column is not a solid bony structure. Rather it is hollow in its center to permit spinal cord, (A) to enter at the top and continue through its center to bottom of spine, (B). In between each vertebra are small openings to permit nerves, which branch off spinal cord, to emerge and to be distributed to various organs.

SUBLUXATION; THE CAUSE OF SICKNESS

Since our vertebrae of the spine are movable, it is then possible for one to slip out of place, (A). When this happens, it will narrow opening (B) thus pressing upon the nerve. This is called a subluxation. It will interfere with normal flow of nerve energy. Any interference with the normal transmission of vital mental impulses or nerve energy from brain to organs will result in sickness.

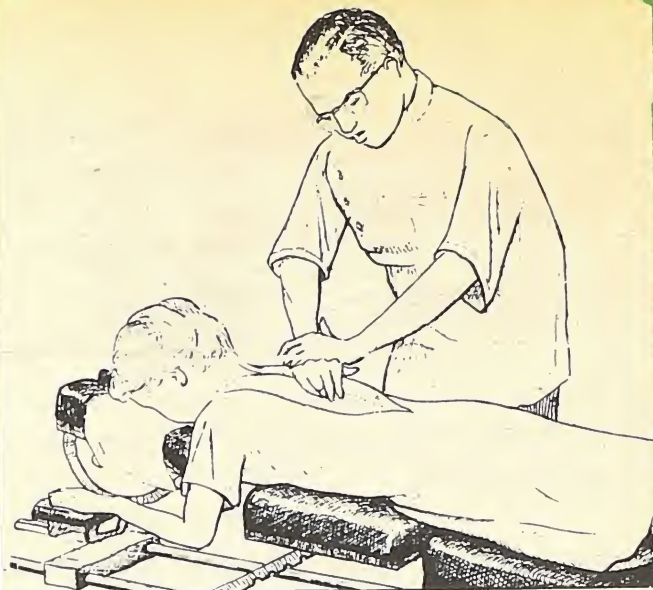

X-RAY EXAMINATION

Very beneficial in the examination of the patient is the X-Ray machine. If your chiropractor advises an X-Ray examination, your spine will then be X-Rayed, perhaps at different angles, to reveal its condition. Spineographs (X-Ray films of spine) are of great aid in locating subluxations.

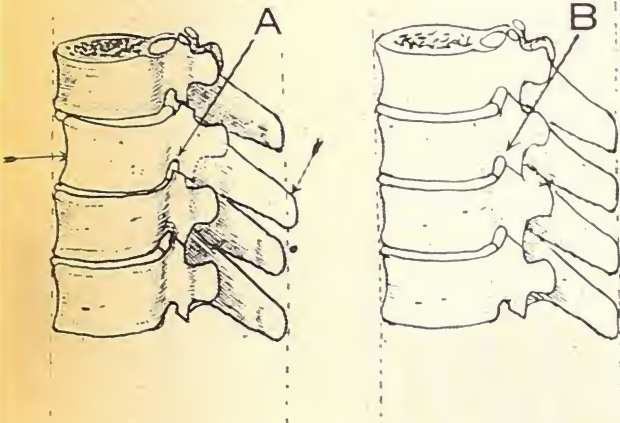

X-RAY ANALYSIS

After the X-Ray's have been taken, the films will be analyzed to determine if a subluxation is present. If the X-Ray films reveal a vertebra that is out of place, these same films will then aid the chiropractor in determining how to correct this subluxation.

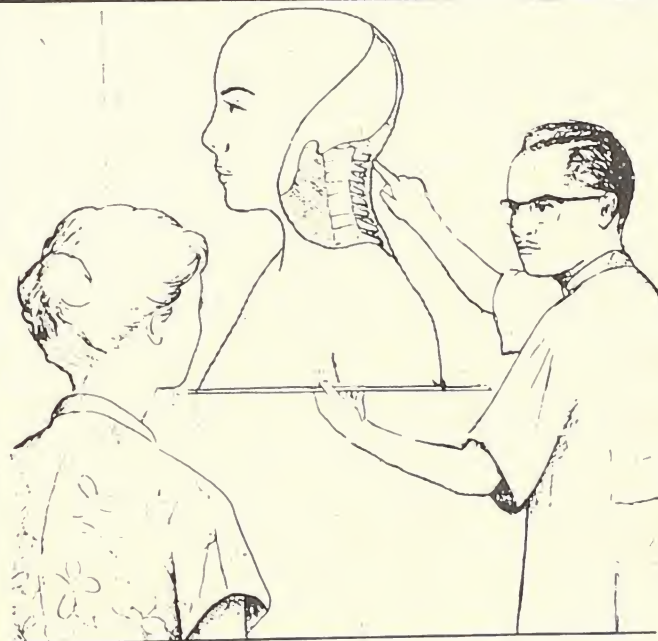

THE SPINAL ADJUSTMENT

If the spinal examination reveals a subluxation, the chiropractor will then, by the use of his hands, adjust that vertebra in order to restore it to its normal position. The spinal adjustment is completed by the chiropractor with skill and efficiency with no discomfort to the patient.

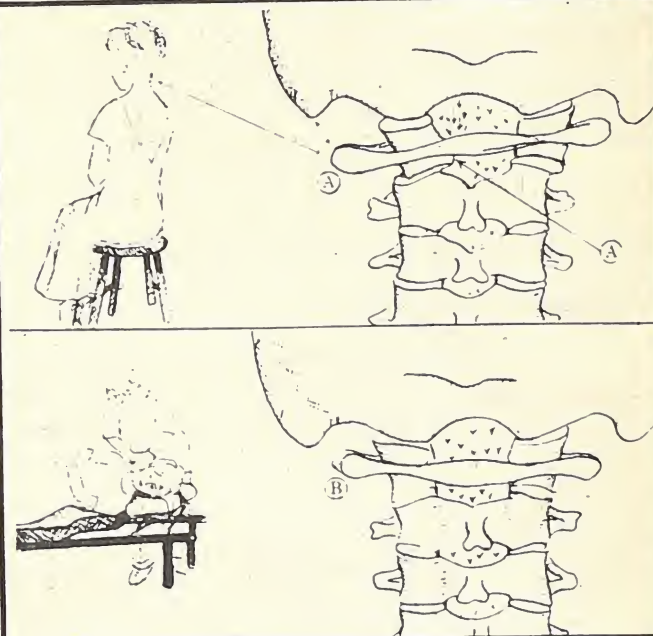

SUBLUXATION: BEFORE AND AFTER ADJUSTMENTS

Section of spine at the left illustrates a vertebra that is slightly out of place. This subluxation will narrow small opening between vertebra (A) from which nerves emerge leading to various organs. (See page 6) View at right shows how subluxated vertebra is restored to its normal position by spinal adjustments. OPENING BETWEEN VERTEBRA (B) IS NOW NORMAL.

THE CERVICAL OR NECK REGION

THE MOST FREELY MOVABLE part of the spine is in the neck region. Here the cervical vertebrae are constantly articulating as we move our head in different directions throughout our daily activities. While this movement is normal, an abrupt turn, work or play habits that tend to keep head in certain positions for long periods of time, falls, strains and even sleep - (improper head support) may cause a subluxation in this region.

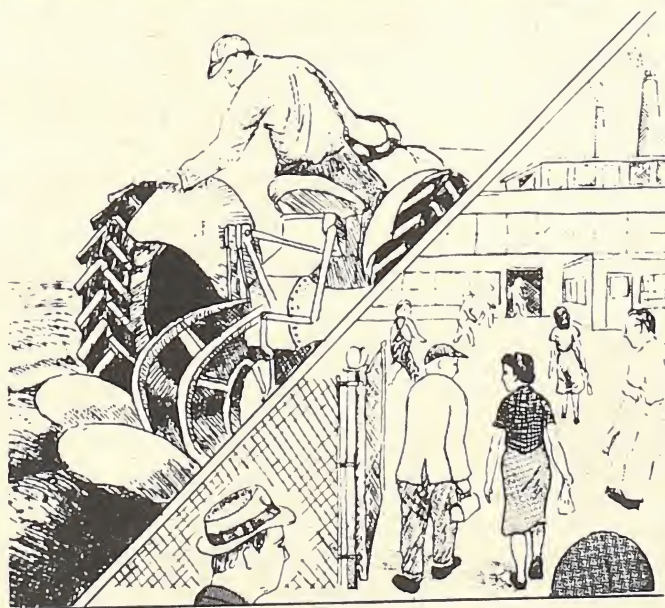

UPPER CERVICAL ADJUSTMENT

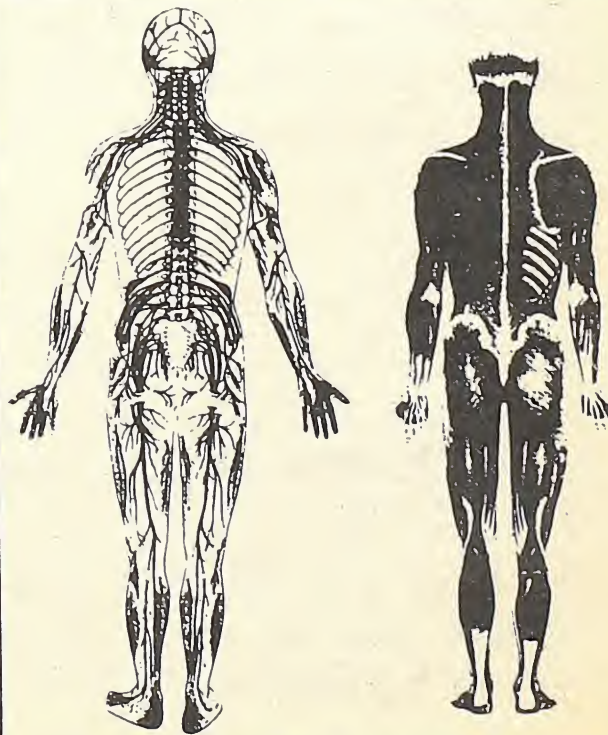

Because the spinal cord leaves the brain and enters the spinal canal in the cervical (neck) region, a subluxation occurring here may put pressure upon the spinal cord, (A). This will interfere with the normal flow of vital mental impulses to the body and organs. To correct this condition a NECK OR UPPER CERVICAL ADJUSTMENT will be necessary to restore vertebra to its normal position, (B), thus relieving pressure upon the spinal cord.

Many times a patient will have a chronic subluxation. (one of long duration) This subluxation may have developed over a period of time through certain work habits or perhaps during other activities that put a strain on the spine. It may be the result of a previous accident, fall, or strain. A subluxation of long standing may impair the efficiency of the surrounding muscles and tissues. That efficiency must be restored. Therefore adjustments over a period of time may be necessary to restore vertebra to its normal position.

Because of the nature of his work, the industrial worker is frequently subject to back injuries and strains. Lifting, loading, or perhaps certain machine or bench work may cause back trouble. Also subject to various back mishaps is the farmer. TIME LOST FROM WORK WILL BE LESSENED when the worker is put under chiropractic care following back injuries. At the same time, if a subluxation is present, it will be corrected thus preventing sickness later as a result of nerve pressure.

HEALTH/FITNESS

Pair workout with a balanced diet

The fitness boom has transformed the way we live. More men and women than ever before are running in city streets at the crack of dawn or dancing away their lunch hours with aerobics. But fitness is by no means a fad — it is a major factor in a new awareness for good health and longevity.

Although advice about staying fit abounds, it often is complicated or confusing or does not encompass all aspects of a healthful fitness program. Fitness expert Ann Dugan believes that exercise alone is not enough. To stay in shape, mild, regular exercise should be paired with a balanced diet from the four basic food groups — grain-cereals, fruits-vegetables, dairy and meat-poultry.

"My approach to looking and feeling good is being totally healthy," said Dugan, who is in her mid-50s. "Unless you understand your body's need for certain nutrients and exercise, you cannot maintain a balance."

In her exercise classes, she advises students to combine good eating habits with regular workouts. This combination can help them lose or maintain weight, make them relax and improve their appearance and self-confidence.

A teacher, author and developer of exercise programs for all ages, Dugan includes meat in her diet. She believes it gives her the energy she needs and enhances body tissue repair and resistance to stress.

Since her busy lifestyle prevents her from extensive cooking, she prefers simple meals such as a hot dog, pizza topped with pepperoni or a piece of salami wrapped around cottage cheese or tofu.

"Deli meats are appealing, nutritious and convenient," Dugan said. "I frequently serve ham cubes with orange slices to my students because both foods are nutrient-rich and refreshing. Deli meat, when eaten in moderation along with other foods, provides protein, iron and vitamins just like other red meats.

Unless you understand your body's need for certain nutrients and exercise, you cannot maintain a balance.

Fitness director for the Evanston, Ill., Dugan is a Ph.D. candidate in the physiology of exercise and also is director of Health 'N Action, a Chicago-based manufacturer of exercise videotapes. An author of 12 exercise books, Dugan also is a spokeswoman for the Processed Meats Committee of the National Livestock and Meat Board.

With the meat board, Dugan recently has addressed the topic of total fitness and her philosophy in a free brochure, Quick Tips for Fitness and Health, that contains a brief program to help keep fit and flexible, along with dietary information and low-calorie deli meat recipes.

The workout outlined in the brochure allows individuals to gradually build endurance and flexibility.

"There are all kinds of diets and fitness programs these days and everyone has a wide variety of choices to follow. Mine simply stresses the basics — eat a variety of foods, eat everything in moderation and be sure to get some exercise," Dugan said.

No short supply

Shorter hospital stays
put demand on retailers

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

With hospital stays getting shorter and at-home recovery periods getting longer, personal medical supply stores are becoming a necessity, according to Lon Hetchler, director of operations at the Linden Medical Supply in Westland.

"As the insurance companies push the hospitals to shorter stays, our industry becomes more important. More and more people are needing medical supplies at home," Hetchler said.

Open for two years now, Linden Medical Supply caters its service primarily to seniors and those in need of long-term medical care. In the store are stocked hospital supplies of all types, from wheelchairs, walkers and hospital beds to liquid oxygen tanks, crutches and incontinents.

Typically, Hetchler said, an at-home recovery can cost $300 per month in equipment rentals from a medical supply store, a considerable savings from the $300 per day generally charged in hospitals.

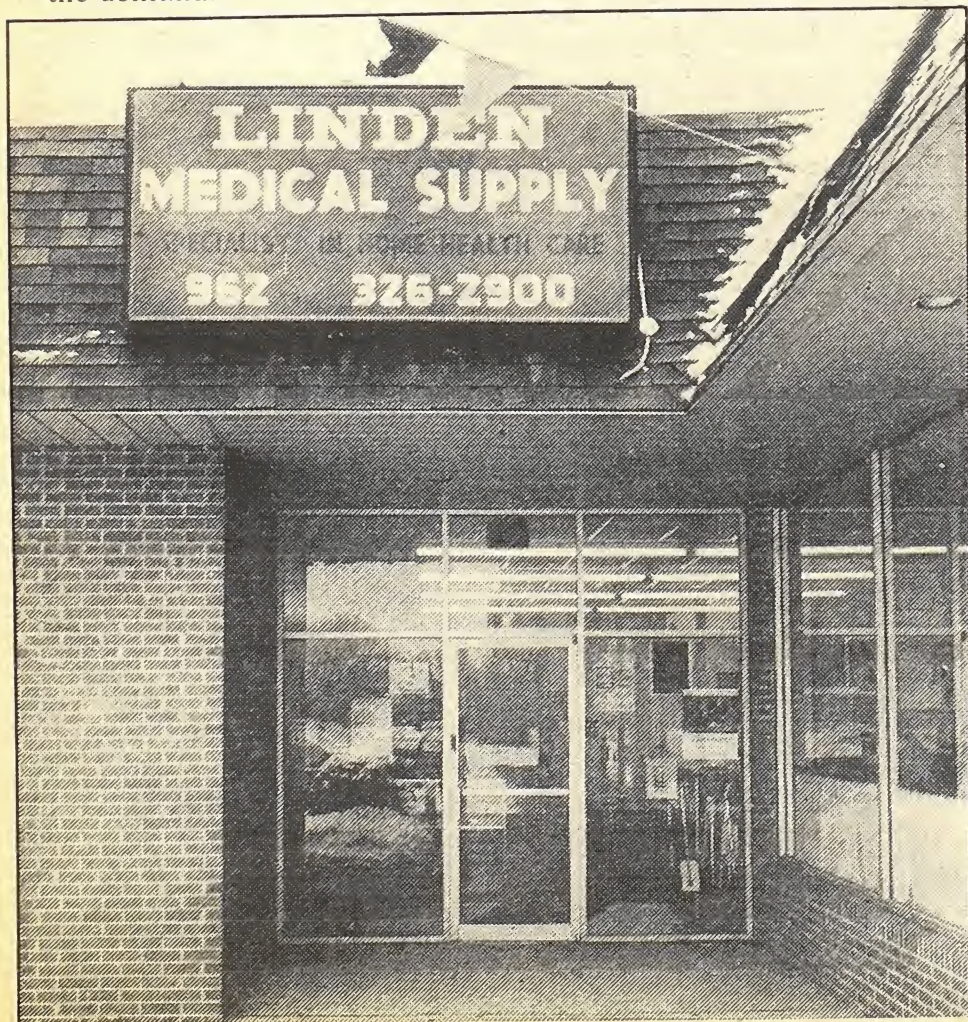

Winter is a particularly busy season for the medical supply business, Hetchler said, as many seniors and shut-ins become afflicted with pneumonia and diseases not prevalent the remainder of the year. Most equipment is rented, Hetchler said, although all customers have the option of purchasing.

Medical supply facilities are not just a fad, said Hetchler. With a national movement toward lowering hospital costs, the need for a hospital setting at home will increase, he believes.

"All of our professional magazines are saying that this is the trend of the future. It's been more common in Europe, but it's beginning to catch on here.

"There's really nothing wrong with recovering at home. A lot of times there is no reason a person can't come home to recover."

Hetchler pointed out that studies in the field have shown that patients actually recover more rapidly in the relaxed, not-so-sterile home environment. And, as more people become aware of that fact and also understand the economic savings of an at-home recovery, Hetchler feels medical supply shops will begin to pop up more and more to meet the demand.

Build a better body with tumbling

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Former Wayne State University football player Doug Rowe has scored a personal touchdown as his gymnastics business takes off in its 10th year.

Now a familiar name, the Michigan Academy of Gymnastics, owned and operated by Rowe, recently moved from Garden City to Hix Road in Westland.

Once inside the modern gym-like facility, visitors are overcome by balance beams, floor exercise mats, vaulting equipment and the uneven bars. Watch your head.

Rhythmic sounds and melodies filter through the air and provide a beat for many of the young athletes. The academy boasts an enrollment of about 300 students who range in age from 2 to 18 with some a few years older.

Many students have grown up in the program. Some earned college scholarships and others won championships in local, state and regional events.

Rowe was dissatisfied with the physical education system in public schools. After he graduated from Wayne State University in 1969, he taught science and health education at Riverside High School in Dearborn Heights for 10 years. In his spare time, he coached boys' baseball, girls' football and assisted with boys' varsity football.

"I started the gymnastics program at Riverside during my last two years. In 1978, I quit school and opened the doors to the academy in Garden City," Rowe recalled.

Most high school programs are limited, he said.

"Gymnastics teaches total physical education with movement, stretching and especially coordination. It's the basis of all sports. Basically, we're educating the physical," he stressed.

Rowe proudly noted that most of the areas top gymnasts "have been with us for one period or another."

Among those who "grew up" on the premises and earned a name for themselves in the field of gymnastics are Westland residents Monica Stauros and Gayle Quashnie. Stauros attends Ohio State University which is noted nationwide as a top school in this field. Quashnie attends Michigan State University. Both graduated from John Glenn High School and earned full-ride scholarships for their athletic ability.

Physical fitness mean more than exercise

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

More Americans are body and health conscious than ever.

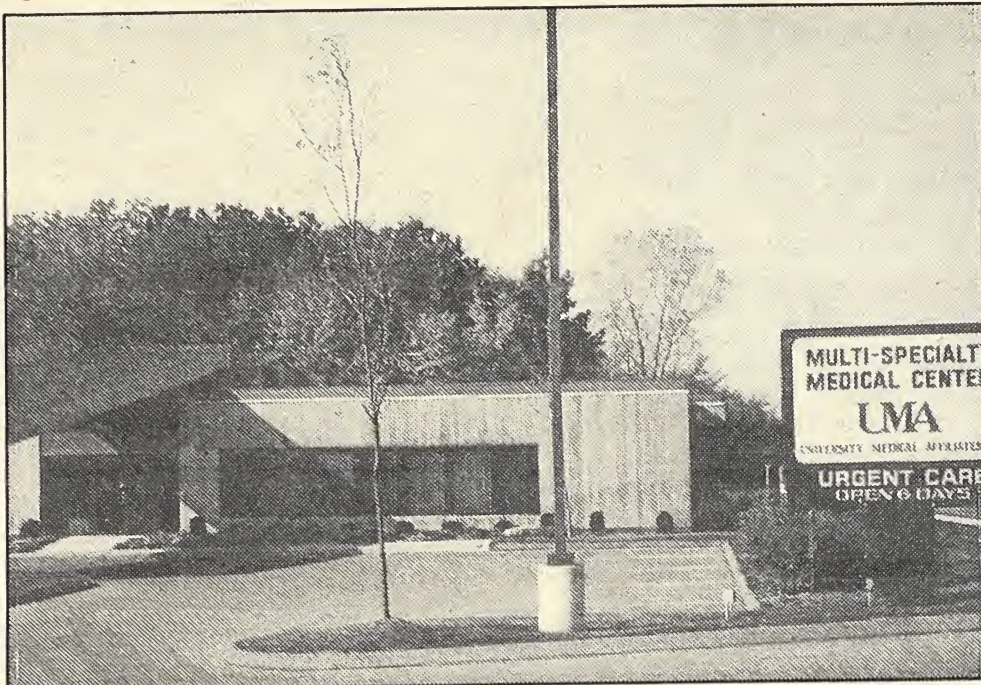

They are getting out and jogging. Walking. Taking up membership in health clubs to exercise and purchasing training equipment for home use at a record pace.

But, physical fitness means more than exercise.

It means checking in with your doctor for physicals to make sure that you're not overdoing it. That's what the people in the medical profession are urging.

And, because the trek to the hospital is time consuming and usually a distance away from residential areas, "hospitals are returning to the neighborhoods in the form of satellite facilities."

"Many hospitals are forming satellites, constructing these medical facilities in the communities," says Jan Lyon, community director for University Medical Associates, Inc., a multi-specialty medical center. "These satellites (clinics) are becoming an intricate part of the community, providing a wide range of medical and health services.

"Where once the patient usually was sent to the hospital for various tests and examination, nowadays, these satellites have the professional staff to do the job on site," Lyon said.

Lyon pointed out that the medical staffing for UMA is provided by the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor.

"We have been open here in Westland for the past two years and the reception we have received has been tremendous," she added.

UMA patients come from Wayne, Westland, Livonia, Garden City, Inkster, Romulus and from Belleville, according to Lyon.

What kind of medical services does University Medical Associates provide? Internal medicine.

Family health care. Specialist in dermatology. Gastroenterology. Pediatrics. Physical medicine and rehabilitation. Orthopedics. Physical therapy. UMA also has a state-of-the-art radiology laboratory and provides mammographic services along with physicians trained in the field of neurology, hematology, arthritis, ear-nose and throat along with general surgery.

"Health care has become a very competitive field," Lyon stressed, "and we must literally be ready to handle almost all of the needs of the patient."

Located at 8623 Wayne Road, University Medical Associates is open six days a week, from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. on weekdays and from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. on Saturday. The clinic accepts Blue Cross-Blue Shield, HMO and Medicare along with Michigan HMO, Maxicare Independent Health Plan, M-Care, Health Alliance Plan and most commercial insurance plans members.

"We strongly recommend that people maintain their health and to keep in shape through fitness programs," Lyon concluded. "And their program should definitely include a trip to see their doctor on a regular basis."
